Modes of Animal Rhetorics Alex C. Parrish,2021-07-14 The Sensory Modes of Animal Rhetorics A Hoot in the Light presents the latest research in animal perception and cognition in the context of rhetorical theory Alex C Parrish explores the science of animal signaling that shows human and nonhuman animals share similar rhetorical strategies such as communicating to manipulate or persuade which suggests the vast impact sensory modalities have on communication in nature The book demonstrates new ways of seeing humans and how we have separated ourselves from and subjectified the animal rhetor This type of cross species study allows us to trace the origins of our own persuasive behaviors providing a deeper and more inclusive history of rhetoric than ever before Environment Space Place, / Issue 2 (Fall 2009) Gary Integral Ecology Sean Esbjorn-Hargens, Ph.D., Michael E. Zimmerman, Ph.D., 2011-03-08 Today there is a bewildering diversity of views on ecology and the natural environment With more than two hundred distinct and valuable perspectives on the natural world and with scientists economists ethicists activists philosophers and others often taking completely different stances on the issues how can we come to agreement to solve our toughest environmental problems In response to this pressing need Integral Ecology unites valuable insights from multiple perspectives into a comprehensive theoretical framework one that can be put to use right now The framework is based on Integral Theory as well as Ken Wilber's AQAL model and is the result of over a decade of research exploring the myriad perspectives on ecology available to us today and their respective methodologies Dozens of real life applications and examples of this framework currently in use are examined including three in depth case studies work with marine fisheries in Hawai'i strategies of eco activists to protect Canada's Great Bear Rainforest and a study of community development in El Salvador In addition eighteen personal practices of transformation are provided for you to increase your own integral ecological awareness Integral Ecology provides the most sophisticated application and extension of Integral Theory available today and as such it serves as a template for any truly integral effort

The Far-future Universe George Francis Rayner Ellis, 2002 Will our universe continue to expand 100 billion years from now Does human life and all intelligence inevitably come to an end as the universe evolves Could our present space be converted catastrophically in to a new kind of space governed by different physical laws Can we construct a theology of the future universe Would the continuation of the universe for eternity be a good thing The Far Future Universe presents eighteen provocative essays offering speculations on various scenarios for the future from the perspectives of cosmology physics biology humanity and theology Other contributors consider global time artificial intelligence religious ideas about the end of the world and the nature of existence Stimulating challenging and exciting these visions of the far future are a starting point for further reflection and speculation

Nervous System Actions and Interactions L. Donald Partridge, Lloyd D. Partridge, 2012-12-06 Nervous System Actions and Interactions Concepts in Neurophysiology approaches the nervous system from a functional rather than structural point of view While all of the central topics of functional neuroscience are covered these topics are organized from a neurophysiological perspective yielding chapters on subjects such as information storage and effector actions Each chapter is organized around general concepts that then are further developed in the text The authors attempt to establish a dialogue with the reader by means of proposed experiments and open ended questions that are designed to both reinforce and question the text This volume is intended to be a book of ideas for the novice or seasoned researcher in neuroscience

Signs in the Dust Nathan Lyons, 2019-02-28 Modern thought is characterized by a dichotomy of meaningful culture and unmeaning nature Signs in the Dust uses medieval semiotics to develop a new theory of nature and culture that resists this familiar picture of things Through readings of Thomas Aquinas Nicholas of Cusa and John Poinsett John of St Thomas it offers a semiotic analysis of human culture in both its anthropological breadth as an enterprise of creaturely sign making and its theological height as a finite participation in the Trinity which can be understood as an absolute cultural nature Signs in the Dust then extends this account of human culture backwards into the natural depth of biological and physical nature It puts the biosemiotics of its medieval sources along with Felix Ravaisson's philosophy of habit into dialogue with the Extended Evolutionary Synthesis that is emerging in contemporary biology to show how all living things participate in semiosis so that that a cultural dimension is present through the whole order of nature and the whole of natural history It also retrieves Aquinas doctrine of intentions in the medium to show how signification can be attributed in a diminished way to even inanimate nature with the ontological implication that being as such should be reconceived in semiotic terms The phenomena of human culture are therefore to be understood not as breaks with a meaningless nature but instead as heightenings and deepenings of natural movements of meaning that long precede and far exceed us Against the modern divorce of nature and culture Signs in the Dust argues that culture is natural and nature is cultural through and through

Sensing Law Sheryl Hamilton, Diana Majury, Dawn Moore, Neil Sargent, Christiane Wilke, 2016-11-25 A rich collection of interdisciplinary essays this book explores the question what is to be found at the intersection of the sensorium and law's empire Examining the problem of how legal rationalities try to grasp what can only be sensed through the body these essays problematize the Cartesian framework that has long separated the mind from the body reason from feeling and the human from the animal In doing so they consider how the sensorium can operate variously as a tool of power or as a means of countering the exercise of regulatory force The senses it is argued operate as a vector for the implication of subjects in legal webs but also as a powerful site of resistance to legal definition and determination From the sensorium of animals to technologically mediated perception the ways in which the law senses and the ways in which senses are brought before the law invite a questioning of the categories of liberal humanism And as this volume demonstrates this questioning opens up the both interesting and important possibility of imagining other sensual subjectivities Life's Solution Simon Conway Morris,2003-09-04 The assassin's bullet misses the Archduke's carriage moves forward and a catastrophic war is avoided So too with the history of life Re run the tape of life as Stephen J Gould claimed and the outcome must be entirely different an alien world without humans and maybe not even intelligence The history of life is littered with accidents any twist or turn may lead to a completely different world Now this view is being challenged Simon Conway Morris explores the evidence demonstrating life's almost eerie ability to navigate to a single solution repeatedly Eyes brains tools even culture all are very much on the cards So if these are all evolutionary inevitabilities where are our counterparts across the galaxy The tape of life can only run on a suitable planet and it seems that such Earth like planets may be much rarer than hoped Inevitable humans yes but in a lonely Universe Biomimetics Yoseph Bar-Cohen,2016-04-19 A review of the current state of the art of biomimetics this book documents key biological solutions that provide a model for innovations in engineering and science Leading experts explore a wide range of topics including artificial senses and organs mimicry at the cell materials interface modeling of plant cell wall architecture biomimetic composites artificial muscles biomimetic optics and the mimicking of birds insects and marine biology The book also discusses applications of biomimetics in manufacturing products medicine and robotics biologically inspired design as a tool for interdisciplinary education and the biomimetic process in artistic creation Sensation and Perception Hugh J. Matthen,2005-02-10 Seeing Doing and Knowing is an original and comprehensive philosophical treatment of sense perception as it is currently investigated by cognitive neuroscientists Its central theme is the task oriented specialization of sensory systems across the biological domain Sensory systems are automatic sorting machines they engage in a process of classification Human vision sorts and orders external objects in terms of a specialized proprietary scheme of categories colours shapes speeds and directions of movement etc This Sensory Classification Thesis implies that sensation is not a naturally caused image from which an organism must infer the state of the world beyond it is more like an internal communication a signal concerning the state of the world issued by a sensory system in accordance with internal conventions for the use of an organism s other systems This is why sensory states are both easily understood and persuasive Sensory classification schemes are purpose built to serve the knowledge gathering and pragmatic needs of particular types of organisms They are specialized a bee or a bird does not see exactly what a human does The Sensory Classification Thesis helps clarify this specialization in perceptual content and supports a new form of realism about the deliverances of sensation Pluralistic Realism is based on the idea that sensory systems coevolve with an organism s other systems they are not simply moulded to the external world The last part of the book deals with reference in vision Cognitive scientists now believe that vision guides the limbs by means of a subsystem that links up with the objects of physical manipulation in ways that bypass sensory categories In a novel extension of this theory Matthen argues that motion guiding vision is integrated with sensory classification in conscious vision This accounts for the quasi demonstrative form of visual states This particular object is red and so on He uses this idea to cast new light on the nature of perceptual objects pictorial representation and the visual representation of space Encyclopedia of Neuroscience, Volume 1 Larry R. Squire,2009-06-12 The Encyclopedia of the

L. Wynne,2013-10-31 Does your dog know when you ve had a bad day Can your cat tell that the coffee pot you left on might start a fire Could a chimpanzee be trained to program your computer In this provocative book noted animal expert Clive Wynne debunks some commonly held notions about our furry friends. It may be romantic to ascribe human qualities to critters, he argues, but it's not very realistic. While animals are by no means dumb, they don't think the same way we do. Contrary to what many popular television shows would have us believe, animals have neither the theory of mind capabilities that humans have (that is, they are not conscious of what others are thinking) nor the capacity for higher level reasoning. So in Wynne's view, when Fido greets your arrival by nudging your leg, he's more apt to be asking for dinner than commiserating with your job stress. That's not to say that animals don't possess remarkable abilities. Do Animals Think explores countless examples: there's the honeybee which not only remembers where it found food but communicates this information to its hive mates through an elaborate dance. And how about the sonar-guided bat which locates flying insects in the dark of night and devours lunch on the wing. Engagingly written, Do Animals Think takes aim at the work of such renowned animal rights advocates as Peter Singer and Jane Goodall for falsely humanizing animals. Far from impoverishing our view of the animal kingdom, however, it underscores how the world is richer for having such a diversity of minds, be they of the animal or human variety.

Elemental Philosophy David Macauley, 2010-09-29

Bachelard called them the hormones of the imagination. Hegel observed that through the four elements we have the elevation of sensuous ideas into thought. Earth, air, fire, and water are explored as both philosophical ideas and environmental issues associated with their classical and perennial conceptions. David Macauley embarks upon a wide-ranging discussion of their initial appearance in ancient Greek thought as mythic forces or scientific principles to their recent reemergence within contemporary continental philosophy as a means for understanding landscape and language, poetry and place, the body and the body politic. In so doing, he shows the importance of elemental thinking for comprehending and responding to ecological problems. In tracing changing views of the four elements through the history of ideas, Macauley generates a new vocabulary for and a fresh vision of the environment while engaging the elemental world directly with reflections on their various manifestations.
