implications of related policy choices with reference to Papua New Guinea Like many other primary commodity exporting developing economies Papua New Guinea experienced several short lived export booms over the past two and a half decades providing a fascinating case study of potential gains from resources booms and the accompanying complex problems of policy management This study also incorporates a comparative study of resources boom and policy management issues between Papua New Guinea Indonesia and Nigeria Evolution from a Thermodynamic Perspective Carl F Jordan,2021-11-26

Survival of the fittest is a tautology because those that are fit are the ones that survive but to survive a species must be fit Modern evolutionary theory avoids the problem by defining fitness as reproductive success but the complexity of life that we see today could not have evolved based on selection that favors only reproductive ability There is nothing inherent in reproductive success alone that could result in higher forms of life Evolution from a Thermodynamic Perspective presents a non circular definition of fitness and a thermodynamic definition of evolution Fitness means maximization of power output necessary to survive in a competitive world Evolution is the storage of entropy Entropy storage means that solar energy instead of dissipating as heat in the Earth is stored in the structure of living organisms and ecosystems Part one explains this in terms comprehensible to a scientific audience beyond biophysicists and ecosystem modelers Part two applies thermodynamic theory in non esoteric language to sustainability of agriculture and to conservation of endangered species While natural systems are stabilized by feedback agricultural systems remain in a mode of perpetual growth pressured by balance of trade and by a swelling population The constraints imposed by thermodynamic laws are being increasingly felt as economic expansion destabilizes resource systems on which expansion depends The New Bryant & Stratton
