Naked In Cyberspace How To Find Personal Information Online:

Naked in Cyberspace Carole A. Lane, Helen P. Burwell, Owen Davies, 1977 Naked in Cyberspace Carole A. Lane, 2002 Reveals the personal records available on the Internet examines Internet privacy and explores such sources of information as mailing lists telephone directories news databases bank records and consumer credit records Web of Deception Anne P. Mintz, 2002 Looks at the growing problem of intentionally misleading and erroneous information on the Web The Complete Idiot's Guide to Online Genealogy Rhonda R. McClure, 2002-01-01 A complete guide to researching genealogical questions online explains how to find records by using the Internet how to create a home page for oneself software and hardware needs available genealogical Web sites and more The book covers the basics of both gathering family data and online searches Averting the Digital Dark Age Ian Milligan, 2024-12-10 This work provides a close look into how archivists and librarians worked to archive internet content The Web Library Nicholas G. Tomaiuolo, 2004 Describes how to create a digital library of documents Design Wise Alison J. Head, 1999 Design Wise explains what interface design is and how to evaluate it Information is included on the importance of interface design to users how a product gets designed a design evaluation template and design analyses of CD ROMs Web sites and online providers The Transparent Society David Brin, 1999-05-07 In New York and Baltimore police cameras scan public areas twenty four hours a day Huge commercial databases track you finances and sell that information to anyone willing to pay Host sites on the World Wide Web record every page you view and smart toll roads know where you drive Every day new technology nibbles at our privacy Does that make you nervous David Brin is worried but not just about privacy He fears that society will overreact to these technologies by restricting the flow of information frantically enforcing a reign of secrecy Such measures he warns won't really preserve our privacy Governments the wealthy criminals and the techno elite will still find ways to watch us But we'll have fewer ways to watch them We'll lose the key to a free society accountability The Transparent Society is a call for reciprocal transparency If police cameras watch us shouldn't we be able to watch police stations If credit bureaus sell our data shouldn't we know who buys it Rather than cling to an illusion of anonymity a historical anomaly given our origins in close knit villages we should focus on guarding the most important forms of privacy and preserving mutual accountability The biggest threat to our freedom Brin warns is that surveillance technology will be used by too few people now by too many A society of glass houses may seem too fragile Fearing technology aided crime governments seek to restrict online anonymity fearing technology aided tyranny citizens call for encrypting all data Brin shows how contrary to both approaches windows offer us much better protection than walls after all the strongest deterrent against snooping has always been the fear of being spotted Furthermore Brin argues Western culture now encourages eccentricity we're programmed to rebel That gives our society a natural protection against error and wrong doing like a body's immune system But social T cells need openness to spot trouble and get the word out The Transparent Society is full of such provocative and far reaching analysis The inescapable rush of technology is forcing us to make new choices about how we want to live This daring book reminds us that an open society is more robust and flexible than one where secrecy reigns In an era of gnat sized cameras universal databases and clothes penetrating radar it will be more vital than ever for us to be able to watch the watchers With reciprocal transparency we can detect dangers early and expose wrong doers We can gauge the credibility of pundits and politicians We can share technological advances and news But all of these benefits depend on the free two way flow of information
