Detroit Food Bill Loomis, 2014-01-28 The infamous images of Detroit's crumbling buildings abandoned homes and weed choked parks are known worldwide Seldom shown are the city's thriving food ways quietly rebuilding neighborhoods block by block with urban farms locally made fare new restaurants and an innovative homegrown spirit that is attracting entrepreneurs and culinary enthusiasts from across the nation Old neighborhoods are coming back to life with the smell of simmering soup the crunch of new pickles and the aroma of all day barbeque Magnificent Art Deco clubs and speakeasies painstakingly restored to their former beauty are busy serving great local food Author Bill Loomis goes behind the graffiti and ruins to explore how the passion for eating well is proving essential to Detroit's comeback Detroit's Corktown

Armando Delicato, Julie Demery, 2007 Detroit's Corktown celebrates the history of Detroit's oldest neighborhood From Irish immigrants in the 1840s to urban pioneers of the 21st century this community has beckoned to the restless of spirit the adventurous and those who have sought to escape poverty and oppression to make a new life in America While the city of Detroit has undergone tremendous change over the years Corktown has never forgotten the solid working class roots established by brave pioneers in the mid 19th century Many of their shotgun homes are still occupied and many commercial buildings have served the community for decades Today the neighborhood is the scene of increasing residential and commercial development and has attracted attention throughout the region No longer exclusively Irish the community has also been important historically to the large German Maltese and Mexican populations of Detroit Today it is a diverse and proud community of African Americans Hispanics working class people of various national origins and a growing population of young urban pioneers It is still the sentimental heart of the Irish American community of metropolitan Detroit and the Irish Plaza on Sixth Street honors the city's Irish pioneers and their 600 000 descendants living in the region Nancy Whiskey
