Napoleon Bonaparte's First Campaign Herbert Howland Sargent,1895 Napoleon In Italy, 1796-1797 Lt.-Col. Elijah Adlow,2015-11-06 Includes 26 maps The story of Napoleon s brilliant first campaign in Italy is here expertly recounted by Elijah Adlow former Lieutenant Colonel in the US 26th Infantry Division Of the many campaigns in which Napoleon participated that in which he first exercised independent command is rich in example In the Italian Campaign of 1796 we discover in amazing sequence those basic combinations upon which rests the structure of the art of war What is more the contrasting talents of the opposing commanders enable us to discover the part which spiritual as well as physical factors play in the process of war Aside from the brilliant successes which gave him fame Napoleon must always appeal to students of warfare because of the distinct quality of simplicity which marked all his operations He had the talent for making himself strategically and tactically articulate To the young soldier who seeks to discover the secret of an art whose mysteries have been revealed to but few there is some compensation in being able to identify objectively those elements which determine the outcome of military events If this presentation has aided in the process its purpose will have been fulfilled Author s Preface

The Defense of the Napoleonic Kingdom of Northern Italy, 1813-1814 George F. Nafziger,Marco Gioannini,2001-10-30 Little has been written about the defense of the Kingdom of Northern Italy and this is the first study in English to detail the two year conflict 1813 1814 within the larger context of the Napoleonic Wars The French commander responsible for the defense was Eugene Beauharnais stepson of Napoleon and son in law of the King of Bavaria Outnumbered three to one Beauharnais fought an outstanding defensive campaign covering all of Napoleon s southern front while Napoleon faced off against the main allied armies as they invaded France This was only Beauharnais s third command and as a result of his less than stellar performance in his two earlier posts he had acquired a poor reputation as a leader Nafziger and Gioannini explain however that in this instance Beauharnais proved himself once and for all as the commander of an independent army defending one of the most important parts of the French Napoleonic Empire He made full use of geography keeping his army in being rather than risking it to seek a decision in the field Because his stepson held the plains of Italy Napoleon was able to concentrate his energies upon the evacuation of Germany and to demonstrate his military prowess in France Extracts from Livy:
