

RHETORICAL DEVICES

Alliteration

Another name for alliteration is tongue twisters: one after the other share the first few, initial consonant sounds.

E.g. She sells seashells on the seashore.

Amplification

Repeating the same word one after the other, combined with an adjective or two makes it seem stronger, more significant.

E.g. His face is red, so so red.

Anaphora

Anaphora is defined as repeating a single word or a phrase in successive phrases.

E.g. Some glory in their birth, some in their skill, some in their wealth.

Antimetabole

Repeating words in reverse order is what antimetabole is all about.

E.g. Eat to live, not live to eat.

Antithesis

Any time you make a connection between two events, people or things you are using this rhetorical device

E.g. Love, is ideal, marriage real.

Allusion

Every time you make a reference to some places, events, or a person you are making an allusion

E.g. I'm not Sherlock Holmes to figure that out.

Analogy

Sometimes the easiest way to explain things is to strike a parallel with some other thing that is quite similar to it

E.g. She is as pale as a ghost.

Antanagoge

An antanagoge is when you combined a positive and a negative statement together

E.g. This summer season was dry, but not as dry as the one back in 2012.

Antiphrasis

This device is used for ironic, sarcastic and humorous effect. It usually makes fun of opposites.

E.g. A really ugly painting, such a Mona Lisa, or a very slow person, Usain Bolt

Appositive

If you want to describe a noun better, with another noun, you are using appositive

E.g. Alexander of Macedonia, master general.

Enumeratio

Enumeratio is when you try to make some sort of point by numbering things one after the other.

E.g. The salesgirl lists every feature the item has in an attempt to make you agree with them

Partial Visions Richard M. Merelman, 1991 A pathbreaking study of political culture in the United States Britain and Canada Partial Visions demonstrates how popular culture expressed through television soap operas and comedies civics and history textbooks magazine advertisements and corporate publications and recruitment leaflets subtly deflects and suppresses democratic political action Richard Merelman argues that political messages embedded in popular culture weaken the division between public and private and between society and the individual These partial visions of democracy are idealized yet inequitable revelatory yet distorted As a result issues that might galvanize useful group conflict do not emerge and the full potential for public participation in a liberal democracy remains unrealized Britain Canada and the United States share a liberal political culture but differ in their historical evolution and in the structure of their institutions Each country Merelman suggests has developed a distinctive popular culture that shapes public opinion and stifles political debate in nationally specific ways Different rhetorical devices and metaphors operate in each nation he points out in Britain for example the monarchy and party system serve as symbols of political reconciliation between the individual and the collectivity Characterizing the United States as a culture of institutionalized individualism and Canada as a culture of emotionally tepid group conflict Merelman finds Britain s culture of group based political debate the most successful in encouraging democratic participation Drawing on symbolic anthropology poststructuralist literary theory and positivistic analyses of attitudes and media influence Merelman conducts a controlled comparison of media representations political discourse and public opinion using rich complex sets of quantitative and qualitative data He concludes that culture is not reducible to institutional interests but is intelligible as a whole structure furthermore culture can and sometimes does change the contours of political conflict
