Immunobiology of the Shark Sylvia L. Smith, Robert B. Sim, Martin F. Flajnik, 2014-12-04 Immunity studies in sharks over the past three decades have produced some remarkable discoveries. If one message rings true, it is that alternative animal model systems such as sharks and their relatives have contributed very substantially to a better understanding of the development and evolution of our own immune system. Immunobiology of the Shark describes the cellular, genetic, and molecular specifics of immune systems in sharks. Diverse approaches were employed to study the immunobiology of the shark, from basic microscopic observations to detailed genome annotation. The book also raises a series of fascinating questions which can be addressed experimentally using today's technology. This book will be a valuable resource for mainstream immunologists, comparative immunologists, geneticists, ecologists, evolutionary biologists, and investigators engaged in shark research. The book also aims to illustrate the magnificence of these animals as model systems and underscores the importance of their study to further understand their complex and often enigmatic biology.

This meticulously researched work presents the study's findings for the first time, releasing a trove of information on the great white's size, distribution, habitat, behavior, reproduction, diet, fisheries, and attacks on humans. With 596 records of great white sharks from the entire Mediterranean Sea, this volume represents the most complete and comprehensive study on the species in that region and constitutes a rich resource for historians, scientists, fishermen, and divers.

A Preliminary Evaluation of the Status of Shark Species José Ignacio Castro, Christa M. Woodley, Rebecca L. Brudek, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1999 The status of shark species is reviewed based on the available data. A review of the history of shark fisheries demonstrates that intensive shark fisheries are not sustainable.

Numerous problems are encountered in assessing shark populations a general lack of biological and fishery data lack of suitable models and lack of validated age estimates Sharks have an unusual combination of biological characteristics slow growth and delayed maturation long reproductive cycles low fecundity and long life spans These characteristics make them vulnerable to overfishing A preliminary evaluation of the status of shark species is made on the basis of historical data the reproductive potential of each species and the level of exploitation of the species In this document exploited shark species are classified numerically according to their vulnerability The majority of these species are listed as Category 1 indicating that there are not sufficient data to assess the species Available data indicate that sharks are very vulnerable and are threatened by overexploitation in many parts of the world
