From Biped to Strider D. Jeffrey Meldrum,Charles E. Hilton,2011-06-27 The inspiration for this volume of contributed papers stemmed from conversations between the editors in front of Chuck Hilton's poster on the determinants of hominid walking speed presented at the 1998 meetings of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists (AAPA). Earlier at those meetings Jeff Meldrum with Roshna Wunderlich had presented an alternate interpretation of the Laetoli footprints based on evidence of midfoot flexibility. As the discussion ensued we found convergence on a number of ideas about the nature of the evolution of modern human walking. From the continuation of that dialogue grew the proposal for a symposium which we called From Biped to Strider: the Emergence of Modern Human Walking. The symposium was held as a session of the 69th annual meeting of the AAPA held in San Antonio, Texas in 2000. It seemed to us that the study of human bipedalism had become overshadowed by the often polarized debates over whether australopithecines were wholly terrestrial in habit or retained a significant degree of arboreality.

Nature's Strongholds Laura Riley, William Riley, 2005. Covers more than 600 reserves in over 80 countries. Includes information on how to visit these extraordinary sites, their ecological significance, and some historical background.

Werner's Magazine, 1899 Werner's Voice Magazine Edgar S. Werner, 1899 Nature Writing Robert Finch, John Elder, 2002. The first anthology to represent the full range of nature writing's rich and flourishing tradition from lyrical essays to thoughtful encounters with new ethical and ecological concerns.

Redefining Nature Roy Ellen, Katsuyoshi Fukui, 2021-01-07. How can anthropology improve our understanding of the interrelationship between nature and culture? What can anthropology contribute to practical debates which depend on particular definitions of nature such as that concerning sustainable development? Humankind has evolved over several million years by living in and utilizing nature and by assimilating it into culture. Indeed, the technological and cultural advancement of the species has been widely acknowledged to rest upon human domination and control of nature. Yet by the 1960s the idea of culture in confrontation with nature was being challenged by science, philosophy, and the environmental movement. Anthropology is increasingly concerned with such issues as they become more urgent for humankind as a whole. This important book reviews the current state of the concepts of nature we use both as scientific devices and ideological constructs and is organized around three themes: nature as a cultural construction, the cultural management of the environment, and relations between plants, animals, and humans.
