This collection of myths and legends takes you on an exploration of how humanity has viewed, revered, and mythologized the moon across different eras and regions. From the romantic Greek tale of Selene and Endymion to the selfless rabbit on the moon in East Asian folklore, from the powerful deity Chandra in Hindu mythology to the tragic figure of Rona in Maori legend, this book delves into the rich tapestry of lunar myths that have shaped our understanding of this celestial body. Each chapter reveals a unique perspective, reflecting the values, fears, and aspirations of the societies that created these stories. Myths of Europe Richard Littlejohns, Sara Soncini, 2007 Myths of Europe focuses on the identity of Europe, seeking to reassess its cultural, literary, and political traditions in the context of the 21st century. Over 20 authors, historians, political scientists, literary scholars, art, and cultural historians from five countries here enter into a debate: How far are the myths by which Europe has defined itself for centuries relevant to its role in global politics after 9/11? Can Old Europe maintain its traditional identity now that the European Union includes countries previously supposed to be on its periphery? How has Europe handled relations with the non-European Other in the past, and how is it reacting now to an influx of immigrants and asylum seekers? It becomes clear that founding myths such as Hamlet and St. Nicholas have helped construct the European consciousness, but also that these and other European myths have disturbing Eurocentric implications. Are these myths still viable today, and if so, to what extent and for what purpose? This volume sits on the interface between culture and politics and is important reading for all those interested in the transmission of myth and in both the past and the future of Europe.
