Myths Of The Terrestrial Paradise:

Myths of the Terrestrial Paradise S. Baring-Gould, 2005-12-01 This scarce antiquarian book is a facsimile reprint of the original. Due to its age, it may contain imperfections such as marks, notations, marginalia, and flawed pages. Because we believe this work is culturally important, we have made it available as part of our commitment for protecting, preserving, and promoting the world's literature in affordable, high-quality modern editions that are true to the original work. The Myths of Plato Plato, 1905 Curious Myths of the Middle Ages Sabine Baring-Gould, 1866 The Myths of the New World: a Treatise on the Symbolism and Mythology of the Red Race of America by Daniel G. Brinton Daniel Garrison Brinton, 1868

American Hero-Myths: A Study in the Native Religions of the Western Continent Daniel Brinton, 2021-12-02 Myths and Mythologies Jeppe Sinding Jensen, 2016-06-16 In all cultures and at all times, humans have told stories about where they came from, who they are, and how they should live their lives. Myths and Mythologies brings together the key classic and contemporary writings, philosophical, psychological, sociological, semiological, and cognitivist, on myth. To the insider, myths contain truth, revelation, and a history of ourselves; to the outsider, a culture's myths can be seen as the product of foolish, infantile, and wishful thinking. Myths tell us about specific cultures, about human creativity, and how narrative shapes and reflects understanding. The Reader is an invaluable resource for students and scholars interested in the impact of narrative on human culture and the meaning of truth in religious language. Curious Myths of the Middle Ages Sabine Baring-Gould, 2020-09-28 I do not refer to the first illustration as striking, where the Jewish shoemaker is refusing to suffer the cross-laden Savior to rest a moment on his door-step and is receiving with scornful lip the judgment to wander restless till the Second Coming of that same Redeemer. But I refer rather to the second, which represents the Jew after the lapse of ages bowed beneath the burden of the curse, worn with unrelieved toil, wearied with ceaseless travelling, trudging onward at the last lights of evening when a rayless night of unabating rain is creeping on along a sloppy path between dripping bushes, and suddenly he comes over against a wayside crucifix on which the white glare of departing daylight falls to throw it into ghastly relief against the pitch-black rain clouds. For a moment we see the working of the miserable shoemaker's mind. We feel that he is recalling the tragedy of the first Good Friday and his head hangs heavier on his breast as he recalls the part he had taken in that awful catastrophe. Or is that other illustration more remarkable, where the wanderer is amongst the Alps at the brink of a hideous chasm and seeing in the contorted pine branches the ever haunting scene of the Via Dolorosa, he is lured to cast himself into that black gulf in quest of rest when an angel flashes out of the gloom with the sword of flame turning every way, keeping him back from what would be to him a Paradise, indeed the repose of Death. Or that last scene when the trumpet sounds and earth is shivering to its foundations, the fire is bubbling forth through the rents in its surface and the dead are coming together, flesh to flesh and bone to bone and muscle to muscle, then the weary man sits down and casts off his shoes. Strange sights are around him, he sees them, not strange sounds assail his ears, he hears but one the trumpet note which gives the signal for him to stay his wanderings and rest his weary feet I can linger over those noble woodcuts and learn from them something new each time that I study them they are picture poems full of latent depths of thought And now let us to the history of this most thrilling of all medi val myths if a myth If a myth I say for who can say for certain that it is not true Verily I say unto you There be some standing here which shall not taste of death till they see the Son of Man coming in His kingdom are our Lord s words which I can hardly think apply to the destruction of Jerusalem as commentators explain it to escape the difficulty That some should live to see Jerusalem destroyed was not very surprising and hardly needed the emphatic Verily which Christ only used when speaking something of peculiarly solemn or mysterious import Besides St Luke s account manifestly refers the coming in the kingdom to the Judgment for the saying stands as follows Whosoever shall be ashamed of Me and of My words of him shall the Son of Man be ashamed when He shall come in His own glory and in His Father s and of the holy angels But I tell you of a truth there be some standing here which shall not taste of death till they see the kingdom of God

The Myths of the New World Daniel Garrison Brinton,1868

On the Origin of Myths in Catastrophic Experience, vol. 1: Preliminaries Marinus Anthony van der Sluijs,2019-01-01 Creation myths around the world reveal an intricate network of recurrent motifs Many of these are counterintuitive and not widely known describing a time when the sky was low the stars did not yet shine multiple suns appeared the moon was brighter than the sun no land existed deities and mortals maintained frequent contact a world axis in the form of a tree ladder or giant man connected the earth with the sky a devastating flood or fire ended the old order and so forth The present work in multiple volumes aims to find an origin for this cross culturally and internally consistent body of traditions in a series of extraordinary natural events relating especially to the earth's transition from the last glacial period to the Holocene. This first volume sets the stage for the interdisciplinary hypothesis. Essential lines of research receive a historical introduction, comparative mythology, catastrophism, and the study of the mythical world axis in relation to the earth's rotation. Various astronomical and meteorological interpretations that are not strictly catastrophist are explored for several types of myths about the sun, the moon, and the world axis, but leave many of the most intriguing traditions unexplained. It is argued that a structural core of the worldwide mythology of creation and destruction, in which the cosmic axis takes pride of place, points to a specific period of dramatic natural circumstances in real prehistoric time. A new synopsis is provided of this universal mythological substrate. It emerges that the mythical world axis cannot have been based on a single object seen or imagined at one of the poles, as has usually been supposed. This surprising conclusion paves the way for the innovative geomagnetic theory proposed in volume 2.

Mircea Eliade Nicolae Babuts, 2017-07-28. Mircea Eliade (1907-1986) was one of the twentieth century's foremost students of religion and cultural environments. This book examines the emergence, function, and value of religion and myth in his work. Nicolae Babuts, Robert Ellwood, Eric Ziolkowski, John Dadosky, Robert Segal, Mac Linscott Ricketts, Douglas Allen, and Liviu Borda examine Eliade's views on the interaction between the sacred and the profane. Each explores Eliade's phenomenological approach to the study of religion and myth. They show that modern rites of initiation, cultural activities, and spectacles like bullfighting, film, and perhaps surprisingly, reading and writing, all harken back to the archetypal structures of the mythical imagination. Perhaps the greatest achievement of Eliade's phenomenological approach is that it reveals what we have in common with pre-Socratic man: the mind's structural capacity to endow objects and events with spiritual values and meanings. As a study of Eliade's concept of the mythic imagination, the book posits an analogy between the myths of the past and modern imitations. The authors suggest that, in spite of their differences and their separate historical sources, myths represent basic structures of human consciousness. This book is essential reading for all students of religion, philosophy, and literature.

The Myths of the New World, The Zonal-belt Hypothesis Joseph Frank Wheeler, 1908.

An Environmental History of Latin America Shawn William Miller, 2007-08-27. A narration of the mutually mortal historical contest between humans and nature in Latin America. Covering a period that begins with Amerindian civilizations and concludes in the region's present urban agglomerations, the work offers an original synthesis of the current scholarship on Latin America's environmental history and argues that tropical nature played a central role in shaping the region's historical development. Human attitudes, populations, and appetites, from Aztec cannibalism to more contemporary forms of conspicuous consumption, figure prominently in the story. However, characters such as hookworms, whales, hurricanes, bananas, dirt, butterflies, guano, and fungi make more than cameo appearances. Recent scholarship has overturned many of our egocentric assumptions about humanity's role in history Seeing Latin America's environmental past from the perspective of many centuries illustrates that human civilizations ancient and modern have been simultaneously more powerful and more vulnerable than previously thought The Myths of the New World Brinton, 1868

KulturConfusão - On German-Brazilian Interculturalities Anke Finger, Gabi Kathöfer, Christopher Larkosh, 2015-07-31 The analyses of German and Brazilian cultures found in this book offer a much needed rethinking of the intercultural paradigm for the humanities and literary and cultural studies This collection examines cultural interactions between Germany and Brazil from the Early Modern period to the present day especially how authors artists and other intellectuals address the development of society intervene in the construction and transformation of cultural identities and observe the introduction of differing cultural elements in and beyond the limits of the nation The contributors represent various academic disciplines including German Studies Luso Afro Brazilian Studies Cultural Studies Linguistics Art History and the social sciences Their essays cover a wide range of works and media and the issues they address are relevant not only for each of the scholarly disciplines involved but also in discussions of current cultural practices in connection to all forms of media The collection thus serves as a model for further intercultural research since it calls into question the very terms through which we understand the relationships between cultures as well as their products practices and perspectives
