Nature And Spirit An Essay In Ecstatic Naturalism:

Nature and Spirit Robert Corrington, 2021 Nature and Spirit An Essay in Ecstatic Naturalism develops an enlarged conception of nature that in turn calls for a transformed naturalism. Unlike more descriptive naturalisms such as those by Dewey, Santayana, and Buchler, ecstatic naturalism works out of the fundamental ontological difference between nature naturing (natura naturans) and nature natured (natura naturata). This difference underlies all other variations within a generic conception of nature. The spirit operates within a generic conception of nature. The spirit operates within a fragmented nature and has its own unique locations. Ecstatic naturalism does not eulogize spirit nor impose a process theodicy upon nature as a whole but carefully describes the ways in which spirit emerges from finite locations within the world. Methodologically, the text radically regrounds phenomenology so that it can work more closely with a metaphysics seeking the most generic forms of nature. The move from a transcendental phenomenology which rests upon a profound misconception of the parcel of a radicalized naturalism makes it possible to show how all orders of relevance are related to nature and to the spirit. This in turn relocates the human process with its dialectical tension between finitude and transcendence and places the self fully within the emergent structures of the community of interpreters as that community lives out of hope. The concept of worldhood is regrounded in pragmatic and semiotic terms, thus putting pressure on Heidegger's formulations. Peirce's pragmatic categorical structure is used to show how worldhood differs from any other order within the world. The correlation of the potencies of nature which are presemiotic and preordinal with the orders of the world itself is possible only through an ordinal phenomenology that remains attuned to the fundamental difference between nature naturing the potencies and nature natured the orders of the world. Finally, the text redefines the divine natures in the light of an ecstatic naturalism that sees God as an order within the world that experiences the fragmented quality of nature. Process theology is challenged for its inability to grasp the tensions between God and the encompassing. Four divine natures are laid bare as they relate to nature and to each other. The work concludes with a description of the divine life in the face of the encompassing.

Nature and Spirit Robert S. Corrington, 1992. Phenomenological descriptions are made of the human process and its struggles between its finite and transcendent dimensions. The self is located within both natural and interpretive, i.e., hermeneutic communities, and the semiotic implications of both types of community are detailed. The phenomenon of worldhood, i.e., that which is not a world or within the world but which locates and encompasses all worlds, is examined from the standpoint of a transformation of Heidegger's formulations. The pragmatic and semiotic dimensions of worldhood are defined in the context of an enlarged conception of nature. Finally, God's several dimensions are explored as they relate to each other and to the world within which they are often embedded. Process theology is challenged for its failure to explore what the author considers to be the fragmented yet self-transfiguring quality of the divine life.

BOOK JACKET Nature's Transcendence and Immanence
Jea Sophia Oh, Marilyn Lawrence, 2017-12-22. What does it mean for nature to be sacred? Is anything supernatural or even unnatural Nature's Transcendence and Immanence A Comparative Interdisciplinary Ecstatic Naturalism discusses nature's divinizing process of unfolding and folding through East West dialogues and interdisciplinary methodologies Nature's serving god-ing processes are the sacred that is revealed as nature's transcendent and immanent dimensions Each chapter of Nature's Transcendence and Immanence A Comparative Interdisciplinary Ecstatic Naturalism shares a part of nature's sacred folds that are complexes within nature that have unusual semiotic density These discussions serve to help restore a better relationship to nature as a whole through an innovative combination of research and ideas from a variety of traditions and disciplines This collection not only introduces ecstatic naturalism and deep pantheism as sacred practices of philosophy and theology but also invites a broader audience from a wide range of academic disciplines such as neuro psychoanalysis aesthetics mythology neuroscience and artificial intelligence AI

A Semiotic Theory of Theology and Philosophy Robert S. Corrington, 2000-11-09 The concern of this work is with developing an alternative to standard categories in theology and philosophy especially in terms of how they deal with nature Avoiding the polemics of much contemporary reflection on nature it shows how we are connected to nature through the unconscious and its unique way of reading and processing signs Spinoza's key distinction between natura naturans and natura naturata serves as the governing framework for the treatise Suggestions are made for a post Christian way of understanding religion Robert S Corrington's work represents the first sustained attempt to bring together the fields of semiotics depth psychology pragmatism and a post Monotheistic theology of nature Its focus is on how signification functions in human and non human orders of infinite nature Our connection with the infinite is described in detail especially as it relates to the use of sign systems

Ecstatic Naturalism Robert S. Corrington, 1994 Semiotic theory which has restricted its focus largely to human forms of significations is transformed by Robert S Corrington into a semiotics of nature itself Corrington situates the divide between nature naturing and nature natured within the contest of classical American pragmatism and postmodern psychoanalysis At the heart of this new metaphysics is an insistence that all signs participate in larger orders of meaning that are natural and religious Meanings embodied in nature point beyond nature to the mystery inherent in positioned codes and signs

Corrington, 2003-07-07 In this moving account of his struggles with manic depressive disorder distinguished philosopher Robert S Corrington creator of the school of ecstatic naturalism presents a compelling argument for rethinking the nature of this malady Having inherited the disorder from his mother a gifted actress who struggled with her own form of it until her death he developed crucial survival strategies that he recommends to other sufferers In Riding the Windhorse Corrington details the latest medical psychological and spiritual thinking about bipolar disease a disorder characterized by extreme mood swings and responsible for many untimely deaths each year Surprisingly however manic depression is also found in almost all forms of genius and Corrington presents two detailed case studies showing this correlation Riding the Windhorse represents one person's eventual triumph over a potentially crippling disease by demonstrating how creativity and the quest for wholeness can support the erratic flight of the windhorse of manic depression

Expanding Process John H. Berthrong, 2008-10-23 Expanding Process explores how comparative philosophy expands our understanding of the critical themes of process change and transformation John H Berthrong examines how notions of process manifest and shape the classical Confucianism of Xunzi the early medieval Daoism of the Liezi and Zhu Xi's Song Dynasty daoism Teaching of The Way Berthrong links these various Chinese views of process and transformation to contemporary debates in the American process pragmatic and naturalist philosophical movements Stressing how our pluralistic world calls for comparing and even appropriating insights from diverse cultural traditions Berthrong contends that comparative philosophy and theology can broaden the intellectual frontiers and foundations of any serious student of contemporary global thought

Religion within the Limits of History Alone Demian Wheeler, 2020-09-01 Among the greatest challenges facing religious thinkers today is that created by historicism the notion that human beings and their myriad understandings of reality are utterly historical conditioned by contingent circumstances and tied to particular contexts In this book Demian Wheeler confronts the historicist challenge by delineating and defending a particular trajectory of historicist thought known as pragmatic historicism Rooted in the German Enlightenment and fully developed within the early Chicago school of theology pragmatic historicism is a predominantly American tradition that was philosophically nurtured by classical pragmatism and its intellectual siblings naturalism and radical empiricism Religion within the Limits of History Alone not only undertakes a detailed genealogy of this pragmatic historicist lineage but also sets forth a constructive program for contemporary theology by charting a path for its future development Wheeler shows that pragmatic historicism is an underdeveloped resource for contemporary theology since it offers a model for normative religious thought that is theologically compelling yet wholly nonsupernaturalistic deeply pluralistic unflinchingly liberal and radically historicist

Nature and Nothingness Robert S. Corrington, 2017-01-23 Is nothingness found in nature or is it in some realm disconnected from nature Nature and Nothingness An Essay in Ordinal Phenomenology argues for the former and explores four types of nothingness as found in nature holes in nature totalizing nothingness in horror naturing nothingness and encompassing nothingness Using ordinal phenomenology Robert S Corrington reveals the great perennial fissuring within the one nature that there is The book includes a detailed analysis of religious violence as it correlates to the holes in nature such as anxiety bereavement loss fear of fragmentation and loss of identity It also examines the various ways in which horror is encountered in a literary context using the work of Edgar Allan Poe and H P Lovecraft The analysis is comparative and makes use of feminist philosophy as well as Buddhist Taoist theosophical and American philosophy Using resources from ecstatic naturalism and deep pantheism Corrington argues that though nothingness takes many forms they are all guises of the same vast Nothingness

Boston Confucianism Robert C. Neville, 2000-09-28 Argues that Confucianism

can be important to the contemporary global conversation of philosophy and should not be confined to an East Asian context

The Justice of War Richard Hall, 2019-11-06 The Justice of War: Its Foundations in Ethics and Natural Law puts normative ethical theory at the forefront in its discussion of the justice of war. Situating the modern theory of just war in its historical context, Richard A. S. Hall gives full attention to natural law, a mainstay of just war theory. Hall considers the American philosopher Josiah Royce's implicit theory of just war with its suggestion of a fourth component of just war theory in addition to jus ad bellum, jus in bello, and jus post bellum, namely jus ad pacem, justice law for or about peace concerning the prevention of war and the maintenance of peace. This book addresses and answers affirmatively the following questions raised by just war theory: Can just war theory be rationally defended against its realpolitik critics? Can there be such a thing as a just or moral war? The book aims at showing the doubters and critics that just war theory is a viable alternative to both the political realism of realpolitik and pacifism. In brief, war can be morally justified though under very restrictive conditions.

Whitehead's Philosophy Janusz A. Polanowski, Donald W. Sherburne, 2012-02-01 This volume explores the range of Alfred North Whitehead's philosophy and his relevance to contemporary philosophical traditions. While philosophers and theologians with only a passing acquaintance with Whitehead might think that his philosophy is unconnected to our Western philosophical tradition, the contributors prove that nothing could be further from the truth. The most respected scholars in the field: George Allan, Lisa Bellantoni, John B. Cobb Jr., Frederick Ferré, David L. Hall, William S. Hamrick, Robert Cummings Neville, Janusz A. Polanowski, Patrick Shade, and Donald W. Sherburne illustrate points of connection between Whitehead's ideas to the following: Descartes, the so-called Father of Modern Philosophy; classical American thought; several contemporary American thinkers including Richard Rorty; and Alasdair MacIntyre, aspects of European philosophy and current reflections upon the environment and technology.
