Max Havelaar Or The Coffee Auctions Of The Dutch Trading Company Penguin Classics:

Max Havelaar Multatuli, 1995-09-01 One of the most forceful indictments of colonialism ever written and a masterpiece of Dutch literature in an esteemed translation by an award winning translator Max Havelaar a Dutch civil servant in Java burns with an insatiable desire to end the ill treatment and oppression inflicted on the native peoples by the colonial administration Max is an inspirational figure but he is also a flawed idealist whose vow to protect the Javanese from cruelty ends in his own downfall In Max Havelaar Multatuli pseudonym for Eduard Douwes Dekker vividly recreated his own experiences in Java and tellingly depicts the hypocrisy of those who gained from the corrupt coffee trade Sending shockwaves through the Dutch nation when it was published in 1860 this damning exposé of the terrible conditions in the colonies led to welfare reforms in Java and continues to inspire the Fairtrade movement today Roy Edwards's vibrant translation conveys the satirical and innovative style of Multatuli's autobiographical polemic In his introduction R P Meijer discusses the author's tempestuous life and career the controversy the novel aroused and its unusual narrative structure consumption has given rise to a series of important questions that are inspiring scholars from a range of disciplinary areas. These differing disciplinary lenses however tend to be contained in separate streams of research literature that are developing in parallel and in relative isolation. Ethics in Morality and Consumption takes an interdisciplinary perspective to provide multiple vantage points in creating a more holistic and integrated view of ethics in consumption. In this sense interdisciplinary presupposes the consideration of multiple and distinct disciplines which in this book are considered in delineated chapters. In addition the Editors make an editorial contribution in the final chapter of the book by combining these separate disciplinary perspectives to develop a nascent interdisciplinary perspective that integrates these perspectives and presents platforms for further research.

See Under: Shoah Marc De Kesel, Bettine Siertsema, Katarzyna Szurmiak, 2014-08-28 Did the first generation Holocaust writers not warn us against the risks of imagination? Does it not create an illusion that the unimaginable can be imagined, the unrepresentable represented? Clearly this warning has not been taken up by David Grossman. Fully embracing imagination's power his novel See under Love offers a profound reflection on how the twenty first century can assume the heritage of the Shoah and remember the unmemorable in a proper way. The essays in this volume reflect on this one novel though each from its own angle. Focusing on one single novel shows the surplus value of a multispectral reflection on one central problem in this case the allegedly inconceivable and unspeakable nature of the Shoah.

Law, Order and Freedom C.W. Maris, F.C.L.M. Jacobs, 2011-09-08 The central question in legal philosophy is the relationship between law and morality. The legal systems of many countries around the world have been influenced by the principles of the Enlightenment: freedom, equality and fraternity. The position is similar in relation to the accompanying state ideal of the democratic constitutional state as well as the notion of a welfare state. The foundation of these principles lies in the ideal of individual autonomy. The law must in this view guarantee a social order which secures the equal freedom of all. This freedom is moreover fundamental because in modern pluralistic societies a great diversity of views exist concerning the appropriate way of life. This freedom ideal is however also strongly contested. In Law, Order and Freedom a historical overview is given pertaining to the question of the extent to which the modern Enlightenment values can serve as the universal foundation of law and society.

Fortress Farming Jeff Neilson, 2025-05-15 Fortress Farming identifies in Indonesia's rural coffee growing regions an alternative livelihood strategy that is reshaping relationships with land and informing Indonesia's agrarian transition. Jeff Neilson presents fortress farming households as ones that are reluctant to embrace productivity maximizing agriculture even as they interact with commodity markets and powerful downstream companies. Rather these households tenaciously maintain access to land as a last defense against insecurity in a precarious global economy, all the while actively tapping into off farm income sources. Fortress farming confounds assumptions that the development process entails an inevitable transition away from the land and into city based manufacturing Shifting away from production to take a fuller view of rural Indonesian coffee growing communities Fortress Farming explores how and why defensive farming strategies have emerged and what these tendencies mean for our understanding of agrarian transition in late industrializing countries in the early twenty first century Neilson posits that late industrializing countries may never undergo a full agrarian transition In the alternative livelihood practice of fortress farming we see a way that local social institutions can resist or at least modify the productive forces of capitalist agriculture
