After the Thrill is Gone Grant Farred, Rita Barnard, 2004 After the Thrill Is Gone is a serious appraisal of what South African democracy has yielded and has failed to yield in the era following the heady expectations of liberation from apartheid's multiple repressions. Since that time South Africa has revealed itself as a turbulent dynamic nation. After the release of black political prisoners in 1990 and the first national democratic election in 1994 its citizens have witnessed a massive increase in crime, unemployment and poverty and an educational system in chaos. In a range of politically inflected essays by philosophers, community activists, political scientists, sociologists, literary scholars and cultural and postcolonial theorists, many of whom are diasporic or resident South Africans, this special issue of SAQ provides a critical look at the realities of black majority governance at the African National Congress and at the costs of ANC rule to the populace. One essay draws a condemning sketch of poverty and violence in the townships and the growing communities of squatters that continue despite the emergence of democracy. A philosophical piece contemplates the practice of human rights in a South African society grappling with the memory of apartheid abuses. The fiction and poetry in the collection explore sexual identity, including issues created by the AIDS epidemic, and offer critiques of government policies. Using comic strips, another contributor demonstrates the ability of South African popular culture to satirize the nation's political status quo. Taken together, the essays in After the Thrill Is Gone open a sobering perspective on South Africa's recent history, its present and its future.

Jo'burg, die blues en 'n swart Ford Thunderbird is a title that reflects the non-conformity of the sixties. This novel does not yield to any convention. It paves its own unpretentious way but with an authentic compassion for its characters who, despite all the blows dealt to them by their working-class existence, desperately strive towards a better life. The dreams and passions that unfold in this story are as life prescribes, ignited by love. It is not only Willie's love for the voluptuous, witty streetwise Martie Santjie that causes a rush in his veins; it is especially his passion for another bird, a black Vee Eight Ford Thunderbird with a silver eagle on the bonnet, that drives him. Willie harbours an all-encompassing passion for his Thunderbird. It is a passion similar to that of a lover but larger and more lasting than the love between people because, as Willie knows too well, people are treacherous.
