

The book cover features a dark, moody background with a central, ethereal face of a child. The face has pale skin, dark eyes, and a slightly open mouth, appearing to emerge from the darkness. The background is filled with swirling, colorful patterns in shades of blue, green, and red, suggesting a dreamlike or surreal landscape. The title 'SAVAGE CHILDHOOD' is written in a large, serif font at the top, and the author's name 'Dudley Kidd' is below it. A subtitle 'A Study of Kaffir Children' is also present.

A Companion to the Anthropology of Africa Roy Richard Grinker,Stephen C. Lubkemann,Christopher B. Steiner,Euclides Gonçalves,2019-02-06 An essential collection of scholarly essays on the anthropology of Africa offering a thorough introduction to the most important topics in this evolving and diverse field of study The study of the cultures of Africa has been central to the methodological and theoretical development of anthropology as a discipline since the late 19th century As the anthropology of Africa has emerged as a distinct field of study anthropologists working in this tradition have strived to build a disciplinary conversation that recognizes the diversity and complexity of modern and ancient African cultures while acknowledging the effects of historical anthropology on the present and future of the field of study A Companion to the Anthropology of Africa is a collection of insightful essays covering the key questions and subjects in the contemporary anthropology of Africa with a key focus on addressing the topics that define the contemporary discipline. Written and edited by a team of leading cultural anthropologists it is an ideal introduction to the most important topics in the field both those that have consistently been a part of the critical dialogue and those that have emerged as the central questions of the discipline's future. Beginning with essays on the enduring topics in the study of African cultures, A Companion to the Anthropology of Africa provides a foundation in the contemporary critical approach to subjects of longstanding interest. With these subjects as a groundwork, later essays address decolonization, the postcolonial experience, and questions of modern identity and definition, providing representation of the diverse thinking and scholarship in the modern anthropology of Africa.

The Neurologically-Impaired Child Robert A. Cummins, 2018-10-03

For the 25 years before publication, a form of therapy known as the Doman Delacato Techniques had been applied to children with disabilities. The therapy originated from the work of Glen Doman and Carl Delacato, who established the Institutes for the Achievement of Human Potential in Philadelphia. The institutes claim to be able to treat a wide range of disabilities, and their best known technique is called Patterning and is prescribed for children who have no capacity for voluntary movement. Yet many professional bodies and associations have denounced the approach as overly expensive, ineffective, creating false hopes, being destructive to family life, and based on false theoretical assumptions. Originally published in 1988, this book was the first to offer a detailed analysis and critique of the Doman Delacato approach. The author draws on data from evolution, neuroanatomy, and neurophysiology to challenge its theoretical assumptions. He shows that there is no sound scientific basis to the techniques. Any improvements in a child's condition can be attributed to the increased energy and attention given to that child rather than the content of the programme. At the same time, parents become emotionally ransomed and deluded by false expectations. Written in a style that will be accessible to non-specialists, the book is an important work for both parents and professionals concerned with the welfare of neurologically impaired children.

The History of Feminism series makes key archival source material readily available to scholars, researchers, and students of women's and gender studies, women's history, and women's writing, as well as those working in allied and related fields. Selected and introduced by expert editors, the gathered materials are reproduced in facsimile, giving users a strong sense of immediacy to the texts and permitting citation to the original pagination. Building on the success of Women and Empire (2009), this new title in the series brings together in four volumes a unique range of nineteenth-century texts on children and empire. Making readily available materials which are currently very difficult for scholars, researchers, and students across the globe to locate and use, Children and Empire is a veritable treasure trove. The gathered works are reproduced in facsimile, giving users a strong sense of immediacy to the texts and permitting citation to the original pagination. Each volume is also supplemented by substantial introductions newly written by the editors.
