Eno,2015-04-30 In these poems the imaginary peculiar and the experiences lived comingle in versatile rhythms and rhymes Whether the anthological presentation of the imaginary or the demonstration of the experiences or whether both were coincidental is a matter for readers to decide drawing their own perceptions of yet another imaginary tale in which the narrative leads them rather than the narrator This is because some of the narratives exhibited here are indeed unusual and would require a great deal of patience on the part of the reader to separate what was the original imaginary and what has been encountered as peculiar experience that had disturbed the narrator prior to the narration of the odd encounter On the other hand the complex world of experience has a variety of underpinning factors Is the experience in question a lived one Is it a seen or witnessed reality Does it relate to the imagery and imagination of the narrator writer author etc Are the observations through the imagination and the subjects of the imagery metaphorical Or is the experience an authorial portrayal of a social reality shared or witnessed by others These in my opinion offer a reflection of how a reader decoder will interpret the poetic narratives expressed in the verses and at their disposal The aim as Ive done here is to present to the reader what to reflect on and the type of reflection the quality of meaning to be made out of the narrative and narration is to be left to the reader This is what I have done in many of the poems in this collection Finale Thomas E.
