

Medical School Self-Assessment

This document should be used as a general guide to assist applicants in the self-assessment of the quality of their medical school application. The University of New Mexico School of Medicine (UNM SOM) uses the selection factors listed in this document to evaluate applicants for admission to medical school based on the ultimate goal of helping to alleviate the health care crisis in New Mexico.

Residency

As a public, state-funded institution, the UNM School of Medicine strives to improve the health care in the state of New Mexico. Thus, the Committee on Admissions evaluates carefully the length and strength of the ties each applicant has to the state.

For admissions purposes, those that have physically resided in New Mexico for at least 12 consecutive months immediately preceding the submission of their application will be considered residents.

Self-Assessment:

UNM SOM requires that all applicants to the regular admissions process satisfy one or more of the following residency criteria in order to be eligible for admissions consideration:

- ☐ A resident of the State of New Mexico at the time of application
- ☐ A graduate of a New Mexico high school in which the applicant has attended at least one year
- ☐ A financial dependent of a resident of the State of New Mexico
- ☐ A member of a federally recognized American Indian or Alaska Native Tribe or Village
- ☐ An active member of the military that is stationed in New Mexico
- ☐ A resident from a WICHE state (UNM SOM participates with Wyoming and Montana only)

Preference is given to applicants that have maintained a long-term presence within the state. Previous residents of New Mexico who have graduated from a New Mexico high school but have been out of the state for the specific purpose of educational enrichment at an accredited institution or active military service will be considered as New Mexico residents for application purposes. Applicants who remain outside the state for extended periods of time for purposes other than those stated above may lose their residency status, resulting in pre-rejection. WICHE applicants must apply through the Early Decision Program (EDP).

The Medical College Admission Test (MCAT)

The Committee on Admissions uses the MCAT score as an indicator of whether an applicant can learn a large body of technical information and successfully apply that information under the stress of an examination. While the Committee recognizes that there is a limit to the predictive power of the MCAT in assessing the quality of a future physician's practice, the score on this exam has been shown to be a strong predictor of whether an applicant will be able to successfully pass the national licensure board exams required to become certified to practice.
