Mathematics For Modern Living Mathematics For Modern Living Usa:

Learning from the Past Diane Ravitch, Maris A. Vinovskis, 1995-02 Many Americans view today's problems in education as an unprecedented crisis brought on by contemporary social ills. In Learning from the Past a group of distinguished educational historians and scholars of public policy reminds us that many of our current difficulties as well as recent reform efforts have important historical antecedents. What can we learn they ask from nineteenth century efforts to promote early childhood education or debates in the 1920s about universal secondary education or the curriculum reforms of the 1950s. Reflecting a variety of intellectual and disciplinary orientations the contributors to this volume examine major changes in educational development and reform and consider how such changes have been implemented in the past. They address questions of governance equity and multiculturalism curriculum standards school choice and a variety of other issues. Policy makers and other school reformers they conclude would do well to investigate the past in order to appreciate the implications of the present reform initiatives. Circular, 1965 Annual Catalog - United States Air Force Academy United States Air Force Academy, 1971 School Life, 1962 The Failed Promise of the American High School, 1890-1995 David L. Angus, Jeffrey Mirel, 1999 This provocative new study of the American high school examines the historical debates about curriculum policy and also traces changes in the institution itself as evidenced by what students actually studied. Contrary to conventional accounts the authors argue that beginning in the 1930s American high schools shifted from institutions primarily concerned with academic and vocational education to institutions mainly focused on custodial care of adolescents. Claiming that these changes reflected educators' racial class and gender biases the authors offer original suggestions for policy adjustments that may lead to greater educational equality for our ever growing and ever more diverse population of students.
