Negotiating Borderlines in Four Contemporary Migrant Writers from the Middle East Petya Tsoneva Ivanova, 2018-10-23 The book considers the persistent tendency to represent the Middle East as a region enclosed in less permeable boundaries This perspective of enclosure haunts Middle Eastern Studies and is part of ongoing cultural debates on cross border circulation currently challenged by spectacular outbursts of violence along resurfacing lines of division This critical study analyses selected works of four contemporary Anglophone migrant writers from the Middle East namely Rabih Alameddine Diana Abu Jaber Laila Halaby and Elif Shafak to demonstrate that in spite of the forceful lines that remain after religious ethnic and political disputes this region does not exist as a rigidly delimited place in the writing of migrants who reclaim it back from beyond its boundaries Rather than being a permanent location it is constructed as a place that flows into other places and is constantly reshaped by a variety of personal stories migrant trajectories departures and returns

Language, Memory, and Identity in the Middle East Franck Salameh, 2010-04-12 Since the West's very early flirtations with the modern Near East and especially in the past 100 years of East West relations there has been considerable difficulty in understanding and defining the Middle East the Arab world pan Arabism Arab nationalism and Middle Eastern identities in general The Western impulse of conflating national identity with language state and ethnicity often subsuming Arabic language into Arab ethnicity has contributed to this misunderstanding and misreading of the region For while the Middle East can be accurately referred to by way of the generic Arab world label the appellation itself is a misleading oversimplification that conceals an inherent diversity and multiplicity of Middle Eastern cultures ethnicities languages and nationalities And while there is certainly a dominant Arab ethnos there are also significant numbers of Middle Eastern peoples and nationalities with historical memories and ethno cultural bonds that challenge the dominant Arabist paradigm Language Memory and Identity in the Middle East proposes a new reading of modern Middle Eastern history and suggests alternate solutions to the region's problems The book is an attempt to rehabilitate and bring back to the fore of Middle East Studies the issue of language as a key factor in shaping and misshaping the region with the hope of rediscovering a broader more honest and less ideologically tainted discussion on the Middle East Language Memory and Identity in the Middle East has a special focus on Lebanon a Christian homeland because Lebanon has traditionally acted as the region's template for change and a barometer gauging its problems and charting its progress

The volume breaks new ground by outlining the characteristics of contemporary Islamophobia across a range of political, historic and cultural public debates in Europe and the United States. Chapters examine issues such as how anti-Muslim prejudice facilitates questionable foreign and domestic policies of Western governments; the tangible presence of anti-Muslim bias in media and the arts, including a critique of the global blockbuster fantasy series Game of Thrones; youth activism in response to securitised Islamophobia in education; and activist forms of Muslim self-fashioning, including Islamic feminism, visual art and comic strip superheroes in popular culture and new media. Drawing on contributions from experts in history, sociology and literature, the book brings together interdisciplinary perspectives from culture and the arts as well as political and policy reflections. It argues for an inclusive cultural dialogue through which misrepresentation and institutionalised Islamophobia can be challenged.
