in a Maya Community Dean E. Arnold, 2015-02-15 In The Evolution of Ceramic Production Organization in a Maya Community Dean E. Arnold continues his unique approach to ceramic ethnoarchaeology tracing the history of potters in Ticul Yucatán and their production space over a period of more than four decades This follow up to his 2008 work Social Change and the Evolution of Ceramic Production and Distribution uses narrative to trace the changes in production personnel and their spatial organization through the changes in production organization in Ticul Although several kinds of production units developed households were the most persistent units of production in spite of massive social change and the reorientation of pottery production to the tourist market Entrepreneurial workshops government sponsored workshops and workshops attached to tourist hotels developed more recently but were short lived whereas pottery making households extended deep into the nineteenth century Through this continuity and change intermittent crafting multi crafting and potters increased management of economic risk also factored into the development of the production organization in Ticul Illustrated with more than 100 images of production units The Evolution of Ceramic Production Organization in a Maya Community is an important contribution to the understanding of ceramic production Scholars with interests in craft specialization craft production and demography as well as specialists in Mesoamerican archaeology anthropology history and economy will find this volume especially useful Sixteenth Century Maiolica Pottery in the Valley of Mexico Florence C. Arnold, 2018-02-07 Based on fieldwork and reflection over a period of almost fifty years Maya Potters' Indigenous Knowledge utilizes engagement theory to describe the indigenous knowledge of traditional Maya potters in Ticul Yucatán Mexico In this heavily illustrated narrative account Dean E. Arnold examines craftspeople's knowledge and skills their engagement with their natural and social environments the raw materials they use for their craft and their process for making pottery Following Lambros Malafouris Tim Ingold and Colin Renfrew Arnold argues that potters' indigenous knowledge is not just in their minds but extends to their engagement with the environment raw materials and the pottery making process itself and is recursively affected by visual and tactile feedback Pottery is not just an expression of a mental template but also involves the interaction of cognitive categories embodied muscular patterns and the engagement of those categories and skills with the production process Indigenous knowledge is thus a product of the interaction of mind and material of mental categories and action and of cognition and sensory engagement the interaction of both human and material agency Engagement theory has become an important theoretical approach and indigenous knowledge as cultural heritage is the focus of much current research in anthropology archaeology and cultural resource management While Dean Arnold s previous work has been significant in ceramic ethnoarchaeology Maya Potters Indigenous Knowledge goes further providing new evidence and opening up different concepts and approaches to understanding practical processes It will be of interest to a wide variety of researchers in Maya studies material culture material sciences ceramic ecology and ethnoarchaeology Ceramics for Kids Mary Ellis,2004 Provides an introduction to clay and pottery plus instructions for twenty five projects using various methods such as a pinch and coil Japanese tea bowl and a press molded hanging bird bath White on New York Corporations Frank White,1929 Clay Products Cyclopedia ,1922 The Complete Idiot's Guide to Crafts with Kids Georgene Lockwood,1998 Hundreds of budget friendly projects include edible homemade goodies holiday decorations toys musical instruments and gifts made from wood metal glass leather clay and found objects South Asian Folklore Peter J.
