Self Creation:

Self Creation Frank Summers, 2013-06-17 Insight and Change The problematic relationship between these two concepts to which the reality of psychoanalytic patients who fully understand maladaptive patterns without being able to change them attests has dogged psychoanalysis for a century Building on the integrative object relations model set forth in Transcending the Self 1999 Frank Summers turns to Winnicott's notion of potential space in order to elaborate a fresh clinical approach for transforming insight into new ways of being and relating For Summers understanding occurs within transference space but the latter must be translated into potential space if insight is to give rise to change in the world outside the consulting room Within potential space Summers holds the analyst's task shifts from understanding the present to aiding and abetting the patient in creating a new future This means that the analyst must draw on her hard won understanding of the patient to construct a vision of who the patient can become Lasting therapeutic change grows out of the analyst's and patient's collaboration in developing new possibilities of being that draw on the patient's affective predispositions and buried aspects of self In the second half of the book Summers applies this model of therapeutic action to common clinical syndromes revolving around depression narcissistic injuries somatic symptoms and internalized bad objects Here we find vivid documentation of specific clinical strategies in which the therapeutic use of potential space gives rise to new ways of being and relating which in turn anchor the creation of a new sense of self

Freedom and Self-Creation Katherin A.

Rogers, 2015-10-01 Katherin A Rogers presents a new theory of free will based on the thought of Anselm of Canterbury We did not originally produce ourselves Yet according to Anselm we can engage in self creation freely and responsibly forming our characters by choosing from ourselves a self between open options Anselm introduces a new agent causal libertarianism which is parsimonious in that unlike other agent causal theories it does not appeal to any unique and mysterious powers to explain how the free agent chooses After setting out Anselm's original theory Rogers defends and develops it by addressing a series of standard problems levelled against libertarianism These include the problem of internalism in that an agent is not the source of his original motivations how can the structure of his choice ground his responsibility the problem of Frankfurt style counterexamples Do we really need open options to choose freely and the problem of luck If nothing about an agent before he chooses explains his choice then isn't the choice just dumb luck The Anselmian answer to this perennial criticism is especially innovative proposing that the critic has the relationship between choices and character exactly backwards Finally as a theory about self creation Anselmian Libertarianism must defend the tracing thesis the claim that an agent can be responsible for character determined choices if he himself formed his character through earlier a self choices Throughout the book defends and exemplifies a new methodological suggestion someone debating free will ought to make his background world view explicit In the on going debate over the possibility of human freedom and responsibility Anselmian Libertarianism constitutes a new and plausible approach

Writing the Self, Creating Community Elisabeth Krimmer, Lauren

Nossett,2020 This volume examines the world of German women writers who emerged in the burgeoning literary marketplace of eighteenth century Europe

The Designed Self Carlo Strenger,2013-05-13 What can contemporary psychoanalysis bring to the understanding of Generation X a cohort for whom the trivialization of a dizzying array of possible experiences teamed with the pressure to lead spectacular lives often leads to diffuse feelings of confusion depression and disorientation The Designed Self chronicles Strenger s therapeutic encounters with five extraordinarily gifted young adults for whom the ideal of authenticity long associated with the Baby Boom generation was supplanted by the need to experiment endlessly with the self Perpetual self experimentation constantly reinforced by the media came to encompass everything from career choice to hair color to body shape to gender identity In compelling clinical stories Strenger introduces us to patients for whom the project of shaping the self had become a cultural imperative no less than an expression of individuality At once insightful and cautionary The Designed Self investigates how psychoanalysis must change if it is to claim cultural relevance and therapeutic effectiveness in The Age of the Designed Self

Institutional Diversity in Self-Governing Societies Dario Castiglione,Filippo Sabetti,2016-12-27 The work of Elinor and Vincent Ostrom represents a distinctive contribution to the study of political economy public policy and administration collective action and governance theory Efforts to present a comprehensive overview of the Bloomington School that grew around the Workshop in Political Theory and Policy Analysis now renamed the Ostrom Workshop which they founded more than 40 years ago received new impetus with the award of the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science to Elinor Ostrom in 2009 Since then renewed attempts have been made to map the Ostroms contributions to theories of polycentric governance and collective action and to multi methods and comparative institutional analysis of ways of managing social and ecological systems common pool resources public economies and metropolitan reform The open ended and multiform nature of the Ostroms research program defies a single comprehensive overview yet it is a stimulus towards both creativity and disciplinary cross fertilization in social science research What sets this volume apart is that it brings together theory and practice models and work on the ground design and creativity empirics and norms to outline the significance of the Ostroms research program for the future Each contribution to the volume takes the Ostromian perspective as the point of departure amplifies it and explores the ground for future work by engaging with other approaches and areas of research with which the Bloomington School has some affinities This way of testing and extending the ideas and methods of the Ostroms is particularly appropriate since their research program initiated and nurtured through the Workshop has always been in between different fields and sub fields in the social sciences political science economics public administration law history anthropology cultivating a strong interdisciplinary way of doing research and exploiting the virtuous circle between theory analysis model building and empirical research Engaging in a creative dialogue with ideas and methods of other research programs is a way of sharpening one s analytic tools while renovating one s own vision of social research This volume is a way of thinking through and beyond the Bloomington School

Sorabji,2006-09-14 Richard Sorabji presents a brilliant exploration of the history of our understanding of the self which has remained elusive and mysterious throughout the spectacular development of human knowledge of the outside world He ranges from ancient to contemporary thought Western and Eastern to reveal and assess the insights of a remarkable variety of thinkers He discusses a set of topics which are at the heart of our understanding of ourselves personal identity memory the importance of seeing one's life as a whole the relation between self intellect will and agency self awareness the stream of consciousness embodiment death and survival He rejects the view found in various philosophical and religious writings that the self is an illusion and develops his own original conception of the self as essential to our ownership of our experience and our apprehension of the world Normative Subjects Meir Dan-Cohen,2016-08-02 Normative Subjects alludes to the fields of morality and law as well as to the entities self and collectivity addressed by these clusters of norms The book explores connections between the two The conception of self that informs this book is the joint product of two multifaceted philosophical strands the constructivist and the hermeneutical Various schools of thought view human beings as self creating by pursuing our goals and promoting our projects and so while abiding by the various norms that guide us in these endeavors we also determine human identity The result is an emphasis on a reciprocal relationship between law and morality on the one side and the composition and boundaries of the self on the other In what medium does this self creation take place and who exactly is the we engaged in it The answer suggested by the hermeneutical tradition provides the book with its second main theme Like plays and novels human beings are constituted by meaning and these meanings vary in their level of abstraction Self creation is a matter of fixing and elaborating these meanings at different levels of abstraction the individual the collective and the universal A key implication of this picture explored in the book is a conception of human dignity as accruing to us qua authors of the values and norms by which we define our selves individually and collectively
