Neelaiah, 2017-06-27 In developing economies and particularly in rural areas many activities that would be classified in the developed world as financial are not monetized That is there is no money used to carry them out This is often the case when people need the services money can provide but do not have dispensable funds required for those services forcing them to revert to other means of acquiring them People find creative and often collaborative ways to meet the needs primarily through creating and exchanging different forms of non cash value Common substitutes for cash vary from country to country but typically include livestock grains jewelry and precious metals In the 2000s the micro finance industry s objective is to satisfy the unmet demand on a much larger scale and to play a role in reducing poverty While much progress has been made in developing a viable commercial micro finance sector in the last few decades several issues remain that need to be addressed before the industry will be able to satisfy massive worldwide demand Empowerment of Women Through Self Help Groups G. Women Studies Microfinance and Self Help Groups A Alimelu Annapurna, This book provides a vivid picture of Micro Finance for women empowerment through bank linkage of women groups in Andhra Pradesh with special focus on East Godavari District The book presents the observations made by the author on the outcomes of specific endeavors of District rural development agency DRDA East Godavari District for the economic political and social empowerment of women and also the involvement of banking sector in the district to achieve the holistic objective of inclusive growth and alleviation of poverty

Sustainability of Microfinance Self Help Groups in India Ajai Nair, 2005 The major form of microfinance in India is that based on women's Self Help Groups SHGs which are small groups of 10-20 members These groups collect savings from their members and provide loans to them However unlike most accumulating savings and credit associations ASCAs found in several countries these groups also obtain loans from banks and on lend them to their members By 2003 over 700 000 groups had obtained over Rs 20 billion US 425 million in loans from banks benefiting more than 10 million people Delinquencies on these loans are reported to be less than 5 percent Savings in these groups is estimated to be at least Rs 8 billion US 170 million Despite these considerable achievements sustainability of the SHGs has been suspect because several essential services required by the SHGs are provided free or at a significantly subsidized cost by organizations that have developed these groups A few promoter organizations have however developed federations of SHGs that provide these services and others that SHG members need but which SHGs cannot feasibly provide Using a case study approach Nair explores the merits and constraints of federating Three SHG federations that provide a wide range of services are studied The findings suggest that federations could help SHGs become institutionally and financially sustainable because they provide the economies of scale that reduce transaction costs and make the provision of these services viable But their sustainability is constrained by several factors both internal related to the federations themselves and external related to the other stakeholders The author concludes by recommending some actions to address these constraints This paper a product of the Finance and Private Sector Development Unit South Asia Region is part of a larger effort in the region to study access to finance in India
