Mab Control:

Journal of the National Cancer Institute, 2004-05 Each issue is packed with extensive news about important cancer related science policy politics and people Plus there are editorials and reviews by experts in the field book reviews and commentary on timely topics

Monoclonal Antibodies Maher Albitar, 2008-02-02 This book examines a collection of state of the art methods that employ monoclonal antibodies in a clinical setting The chapters offer in depth description for generating mouse and recombinant humanized antibodies and a comprehensive review of how antibodies are being used in bead based methods for measuring proteins This field will continue to expand and provide new and innovative techniques in the laboratory and as a basis that complements targeted therapy

Chemical Carcinogenesis Francisco Feo, Paolo Pani, 2013-11-11 About two centuries after the communication by Sir Percival Pott that the chimney sweeper disease was a cancer and its suggestion that active compounds of soot were the causative agents and about one century after the description of urinary bladder cancer in dye workers an enormous number of substances have been synthesized and have probably come into contact with man Research in cancer prevention is of primary importance and may receive continuous support from new discoveries on cancer etiology and pathogenesis If one accepts the multistage model of chemical carcinogenesis one has also to accept that many events occur between the contact of carcinogenic compounds and their specific targets and the development of a clinically recognizable neoplasm Thus animal studies become essential to elucidate the different steps by which chemical carcinogens induce neoplasia The analysis of these steps and the comparative evaluation of experimental models is essential to an understanding of pathogenesis

Leukocyte Adhesion Molecules Timothy A. Springer, Donald C. Anderson, Alan S. Rosenthal, Robert Rothlein, 2012-12-06 Leukocyte adhesion molecules promise to be highly effective as antigens in the antibody directed leucocyte elimination treatment prior to grafting or in cases of acute and chronic inflammatory disease This comprehensive review of contemporary research provides thorough discussions of the structure of these molecules their in vitro function and the role that they play in vivo as evidenced by results shown in inflammatory models where antibodies against these molecules are given to inhibit their function The blend of basic science and clinical applications provides clear evidence of the biological relevance of cell cell interactions and the many potential clinical dividends afforded by understanding the molecular basis of cell adhesion

Cells, Proteins and Materials Heather Sheardown, Stuart L. Cooper, 2003-05-31 Proteins Cells and Materials contains a collection of articles which constitute together the complete Festschrift in honor of the 65th birthday of Dr John L Brash For the first time these articles published previously in several special issues of the Journal of Biomaterials Science Polymer Edition have been compiled into one comprehensive volume Over the past 40 years John Brash a member of the Editorial Board of the Journal of Biomaterials Science Polymer Edition has distinguished himself in the field of biomaterials Much of his efforts have focused on detailed studies of blood surface interactions particularly those of plasma proteins His multi faceted approach recognises the importance of hemodynamics transport and surface phenomena in the gross effects that result from blood surface contact In this book articles on the most recent development in these areas are collected and will thus provide a wealth of information of current research to specialists in the above mentioned fields HIV Molecular Immunology 2002 ,2002

MERS-CoV Fang Li,Lanying Du,2019-12-12 Middle East respiratory syndrome coronavirus MERS CoV is an emerging zoonotic coronavirus First identified in 2012 MERS CoV has caused over 2460 infections and a fatality rate of about 35% in humans Similar to severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus SARS CoV MERS CoV likely originated from bats however different from SARS CoV which potentially utilized palm civets as its intermediate hosts MERS CoV likely transmits to humans through dromedary camels Animal models such as humanized mice and nonhuman primates have been developed for studying MERS CoV infection Currently there are no vaccines and therapeutics approved for the prevention and treatment of MERS CoV infection although a number of them have been developed preclinically or tested clinically This book covers one editorial and 16 articles including seven review articles and nine original research papers written by researchers working in the field of MERS CoV It describes the following three main aspects 1 MERS CoV epidemiology transmission and pathogenesis 2 current progress on MERS CoV animal models vaccines and therapeutics and 3 challenges and future prospects for MERS CoV research Overall this book will help researchers in the MERS CoV field to further advance their work on the virus It also has important implications for other coronaviruses as well as viruses outside the coronavirus family with pandemic potentials Bacteria, Complement and the Phagocytic Cell Felipe C. Cabello,Carla Pruzzo,2013-06-29

Phagocytic cells and complement are probably the most important components of host defense against bacteria which after overcoming the mucosal and epithelial barriers multiply in the subepithelial tissue and may threaten to disseminate and invade the blood stream and different organs Questions concerning the factors which regulate the interactions of the bacterial cell with host defenses are a challenge to research and lead to practical applications for the prevention treatment and diagnosis of infectious diseases The questions of expression and regulation of virulence related bacterial genes and gene products the specific mechanisms of defence reactions by complement and phagocytic cells their mutual interactions with bacteria and especially bacterial surfaces are focused Considerations on how to translate this knowledge into the management of infectious diseases are also included Meningococcal Disease Andrew J. Pollard,Martin C.J.

Maiden,2008-02-02 Meningococcal septicemia and meningitis continue to be important causes of devastating illness death and long term disability in both developed and resource poor countries of the world Few diseases have attracted as much public attention or are as feared by parents and family members as well as the medical staff who have to care for affected patients The unexpected and unpredictable occurrence of the disease in previously healthy children and young adults its rapid progression and the frequent occurrence of purpura fulminans with the resulting gangrene of limbs and digits and the requirement for mutilating surgery have all heightened both public and medical interest in the disease Over the past two decades there has been a rapid increase in knowledge of many aspects of meningococcal disease as a result of intensive efforts by workers in many different fields clinicians have studied the early presenting features and acute pathophysiology of the disorder clinical scientists have explored the immunopathological mechanisms responsible for disease and have highlighted the important roles played by the host inflammatory response and pro inflammatory cytokines in mediating damage to blood vessels and organs microbiologists have developed new diagnostic methods public health physicians and epidemiologists have improved surveillance techniques with the help of molecular tools provided by bacterial population biologists and basic scientists have used the powerful new tools in molecular and cell biology to elucidate virulence mechanisms
