Hibberd,2006-11-24 For more than half of the 20 century psychologists sought to locate the causes of behaviour in individuals and tended to neglect the possibility of locating the psychological in the social In the late 1960s a reaction to that neglect brought about a crisis in social psychology This crisis did not affect all social psychologists some remained seemingly oblivious to its presence others dismissed its significance and continued much as before But in certain quarters the psychological was reconceptualised as the social and the social was taken to be sui generis Moreover the possibility of developing general laws and theories to describe and explain social interaction was rejected on the grounds that as social beings our actions vary from occasion to occasion and are for many reasons unrepeatable There is so it was thought an inherent instability in the phenomena of interest The nomothetic ideal was said to rest on individualistic cause effect positivism of the kind which arguably characterised the natural sciences but social psychology so it was said is an historical inquiry and its conclusions are necessarily historically relative Gergen 1973 Events outside psychology converged to give impetus to the crisis within Stanford Humanities
