

WEEK 4 (21/02): MARXIST

MARXIST THEORIES OF IMPERIALISM

For Marxist analysts, what drives world politics are economic relations, economic forces. International economic order is unjust: the rich core exploits the poor periphery, and the periphery finds it difficult to escape this situation of economic exploitation.

KEY MARXIST CONCEPTS

Key unit for Marxism is social class

- Political conflict arises from struggle between social classes (capitalists versus workers) over the distribution of wealth in society
- In contrast to Liberal argument that there is a "harmony of interests", Marxists argue that capitalist economic relations are fundamentally about exploitation of the workers → continuing conflict between them and the owners of capital.

Increasing exploitation, misery and suffering would lead to works gaining a revolutionary consciousness:

- Under capitalism, the industrial working class (proletariat) are in constant conflict (class struggle) with the owners of the means of production (bourgeoisie)
- End result: overthrowing of capitalism by the workers and establishment of a class-free society: communist

Political conflict will only disappear with the elimination of capitalism, the market, and economic exploitation, and with a society no longer based on classes.

MARXISM AND THE STATE

Marxism not only rejects the Liberal view of a "harmony of interests" within society, but it also attacks the Realist school of thought:

- It rejects the notion of a "national" interest → the State mirrors the preferences of the capitalist class
- In the Communist Manifesto, the state is effectively an "executive committee", which defends the "common affairs of the whole of the bourgeoisie"

THE DYNAMIC NATURE OF CAPITALISM

Much of Karl Marx's arguments are based on the development of capitalism (the Industrial Revolution) in Britain in the 19th century

Ind. Rev. had massive impact on the structure of the economy and, as a result, on society as a whole

- Rise of industrial manufacturing, large factories, large-scale production, relative decline of agriculture, emergence of industrial working class, trade unions, socialist parties, etc.

Britain was eventually joined by other powerful capitalist competitors, undergoing their own Ind. Rev.: Germany, France, and the USA.

MARXISM AND WORLD POLITICS

Although Marx generated his arguments by analysing a single case (Britain), he expected capitalism to spread globally

Key part of Marxist thinking on international relations is that for capitalist countries, foreign economic expansion is necessary.
