Taylor,2003-08-05 Hugh A Taylor is one of the most important thinkers in the English speaking world of archives A retired civil servant and archival educator he was named to the prestigious Order of Canada his nation s highest civilian award The fifteen essays in this volume are presented in chronological order so that readers may appreciate the broadening evolution and rich interconnections in Taylor's thought as these occurred over more than three decades. These essays link archives to social life and contemporary ideas. Long before postmodern scholars' recent fascination with the archive, Taylor was intent on constructing archives anew, imagining them as places where archivists connect their records with social issues, with new media and technologies with the historical tradition of archives with the earth's ecological systems and with broader spiritual meaning. Also included are two original essays by editors Terry Cook and Gordon Dodds.

Writing the Lives of Painters Karen Junod, 2011-01-27. Writing the Lives of Painters explores the development of artists' biographies in eighteenth and early nineteenth century Britain. During this period, artists gradually distanced themselves from artisans and began to be recognised for their imaginative and intellectual skills. The development of the art market and the burgeoning of an exhibition culture, as well as the foundation of the Royal Academy of Arts in 1768, all contributed to redefining the rank of artists in society. This social redefinition of the status of artists in Britain was shaped by a thriving print culture. Contemporary artists were discussed in a wide range of literary forms, including exhibition reviews, art critical pamphlets, and journalistic gossip columns. Biographical accounts of modern artists emerged in a dialogue with these other types of writing. This book is an account of a new literary genre, tracing its emergence in the cultural context of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. It considers artistic biography as a malleable generic framework for investigation. Indeed, while the lives of painters in Britain did not completely abandon traditional tropes, the genre significantly widened its scope and created new individual and social narratives that reflected and accommodated the needs and desires of new reading audiences. Writing the Lives of Painters also argues that the proliferation of a myriad biographical forms mirrored the privileging of artistic originality and difference within an art world that had yet to generate a coherent British School of painting. Finally, by focusing on the emergence of individual biographies of British artists, the book examines how and why the art historiographic model established by Giorgio Vasari was gradually dismantled in the hands of British biographers during the Romantic period.

The Victorians and the Visual Imagination Kate Flint, 2000-08-28. The Victorians and the Visual Imagination is an exciting and innovative exploration of the Victorians' attitudes towards sight. Tantalized by physiologists who proved the unreliability of the eye, intrigued by the role of subjectivity within vision, and provoked by new technologies of spectatorship, the Victorians were also imaginatively stirred by the sense of a world which lay just out of human sight. This interdisciplinary study draws on writers as diverse as George Eliot, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, and Rudyard Kipling, as well as Pre-Raphaelite and realist painters including Millais, Burne-Jones, William Powell Frith, and Whistler, and a host of Victorian scientists, cultural commentators, and art critics. Its topics include blindness, the location of memory, hallucination, dust, and the importance of the horizon, a dazzling eclectic range of subjects linked together by the operations of the eye and brain.
