Greenhouse, 2011-05-05 Selected by Choice magazine as an Outstanding Academic Title Between 1990 and 1996 the US Congress passed market based reforms in the areas of civil rights welfare and immigration in a series of major legislative initiatives These were announced as curbs on excessive rights and as correctives to a culture of dependency among the urban poor stock images of racial and cultural minorities that circulated well beyond Congress But those images did not circulate unchallenged even after congressional opposition failed In The Paradox of Relevance Carol J Greenhouse provides a political and literary history of the anthropology of U S cities in the 1990s where below the radar New Deal liberalism with its iconic bond between society and security continued to thrive The Paradox of Relevance opens in the midst of anthropology s so called postmodern crisis and the appeal to relevance as a basis for reconciliation and renewal The search for relevance leads outward to the major federal legislation of the 1990s and the galvanic political tensions between rights and market based reforms Anthropologists efforts to inform those debates through relevant ethnography were highly patterned revealing the imprint of political tensions in shaping their works central questions and themes as well as their organization narrative techniques and descriptive practices In that sense federal discourse dominates the works demonstrations of ethnography s relevance however the authors simultaneously resist that dominance through innovations in their own literariness in particular drawing on diasporic fiction and sociolegal studies where these articulate more agentive meanings of identity and difference The paradox of relevance emerges with the realization that in the context of the times affirming the relevance of ethnography as value neutral science required the textual practices of advocacy and art Anthropology at the Edge Ian Prattis, 1997 Symbolic process myth science postmodernism and the environment are skillfully woven together in 13 essays that reflect the timbre of the times in terms of current issues in anthropology philosophy and religion The spectre of consciousness transformation provides a common underlying theme and Prattis provides a novel perspective on who we are where did we come from where are we going The current furor over the nature of science postmodernism and symbolic processes in society is the driving force behind this collection of essays Contents PART I Beyond Structuralism Man and Metaphor Parsifal and Semiotic Structuralism PART II The Poetic Turn and Postmodern Reflexivity Dialectics and Experience in Fieldwork Reflections as Myth Reflexive Anthropology with D Blair Opening Ourselves up to the Voyage of Anthropological Practice PART III Process and Form Celtic Festivals and Bilingualism Policy The Barra Feis Sacred Dance and Cultural Bridges Death Breaths and Drivers The Phenomenology of Shamanic Experiences Metaphor Vibration and Form PART IV Paradigms Science and Sages a Small Matter of Paradigms PART V Gaia and the Environment Two Essays Issues of Inner Ecology Myth Meditation and Transformation of Consciousness About the Author Author Index Crossroads of Culture Chip Colwell-Chanthaphonh, Stephen E.
