Weber (Ingénieur forestier), 1977 Afforestation, Reforestation and Forest Restoration in Arid and Semi-arid Tropics Panna Ram Siyag, 2013-09-24 The book is a comprehensive manual of practice for execution of afforestation and tree planting programmes in arid and semi arid tropics It includes a compact running account of the technology of afforestation and the relevant principles and practices in management of afforestation projects It provides a wide range of structured information and a number of model designs which can be gainfully put to use by the field level supervisors as also by the managers concerned with planning and control of such projects Written by a practising specialist the book is invaluable for anyone concerned with the practice of afforestation and tree planting be he a tree hobbyist or a school teacher a professional forester or a senior policy maker in government an industrialist or a philanthropist an environmental activist or a member of a community service organization Technologies and Technology Systems for Reforestation of Degraded Tropical Lands Peter J. Wood, 1982 Tree Planting Practices for Arid Zones Amihud Y. Goor, 1963 Afforestation in Arid Zones R.N. Kaul, 2012-12-06 The increasing world population is already causing intensive pressure on the most productive areas of the earth s surface Hopes of improved living standards if realised will increase the pressure still further The need to make better use of less productive areas thus becomes an urgent priority for human endeavour In this respect the arid and semi arid regions of the world occupying about 11 000 million acres or 4 500 million hectares roughly one third of the total land surface pose a constant challenge to man s technological skill Though the possibilities of economic use of the real deserts are inherently limited there remain vast areas with less extreme conditions where sustained research is capable of yielding substantial gains in productivity The problem is so large that it can be solved only by the coordinated efforts of workers in many countries and many disciplines Forestry has a special part to play not only for its potential value for wood production but still more for the beneficial effects of shelter from desiccating winds which so commonly accompany arid conditions Mr KA UL is to be congratulated on his initiative to pool the results of research on afforestation in arid zones in many parts of the world and to present them in a single volume in the form of separate monographs Policy Options for Stabilizing Global Climate, 1989 Sustaining tropical forest resources Chris Elfring, 1983 Sustaining Tropical Forest Resources Susan Shen, 1983 People, Land & Water, 2005 Forest management and the impact on water resources García

Chevesich, Pablo, Neary, Daniel G., Scott, David F., Benyon, Richard G., Reyna, Teresa, 2017-04-24 Trees have been around for more than 370 million years and today there are about 80 thousand species of them occupying 3.5 billion hectares worldwide including 250 million ha of commercial plantations. While forests can provide tremendous environmental, social and economic benefits to nations, they also affect the hydrologic cycle in different ways. As the demand for water grows and local precipitation patterns change due to global warming, plantation forestry has encountered an increasing number of water-related conflicts worldwide. This document provides a country-by-country summary of the current state of knowledge on the relationship between forest management and water resources. Based on available research publications, the Editor in Chief of this document contacted local scientists from countries where the impact of forest management on water resources is an issue, inviting them to submit a chapter.

Mainstreaming Climate Change in Development Cooperation Nicolien van der Grijp, 2010-04-29 Climate change, development and development cooperation are individually and jointly three politically sensitive, complex issues, especially in the context of relations between developed and developing countries. This book tackles these issues by combining theoretical, political and practical perspectives, analysing the dominant paradigms and exploring the meaning of the concept of mainstreaming. At the practical level, it presents the results of case studies focusing on assistance provided by the European Union and key member states and the climate needs articulated by developing countries. At the political level, it highlights the sensitivities between developed and developing countries and examines the mainstreaming debate in various fora. This book is valuable for policymakers, academics, politicians and non-state actors working in the fields of development studies, international law, politics, international relations, economics, climate change and environmental studies.

Natural Resource Technical Bulletin, 1981 Neem: Today and in the New Millennium

Opende Koul, Seema Wahab, 2007-05-08 The chemicals from plant sources, generally termed as phytochemicals, play an important role in acceptance or rejection of the plant by the pests, as they could be distasteful or toxic on one hand or, on the other hand, specialist herbivores have the capability to feed on many such chemicals as they are able to process these natural products in a manner that is beneficial to them. In the wake of increasing environmental degradation due to burgeoning synthetic chemicals, there has been a process going on to rediscover the usefulness of plants and herbs, and a continued effort for more than 2 decades has been to study the green products for cures for several ailments and pest management. In fact, according to Indian Medicinal Plants: A Sectoral Study, the global trade for medicinal plants amounts to about US 60 billion and the world demand continues to grow at the rate of 7 per cent per annum. Although many such plants are known in literature, neem has been one of the trees with manifold virtues. Indian neem tree, Azadirachta indica A. Juss., which is a large evergreen tree, is an outstanding example among plants that has been subject matter of numerous scientific studies concerning its utilization in medicine, industry and agriculture. So far, neem preparations have been evaluated against more than 500 species of insects and more than 400 hundred are reported to be susceptible at different concentrations. The
