

A Fallen Limb

*A limb has fallen from the family tree.
I keep hearing a voice that says,
"Grieve not for me.
Remember the best times,
the laughter, the song.
The good life I lived while I was strong.
Continue my heritage,
I'm counting on you.
Keep smiling and surely the sun will shine through.
My mind is at ease,
my soul is at rest.
Remembering all,
how I truly was blessed.
Continue traditions,
no matter how small.
Go on with your life,
don't worry about falls.
I miss you all dearly,
so keep up your chin.
Until the day comes we're together again."*

Moving In Memory Poems:

Moving in Memory Julia Randall, 1987-03-01 Moving in Memory Julia Randall's sixth volume of poems explores our relationship to nature to art and to our past selves In these poems Randall's familiar terrain the woods streams and fields of Maryland becomes our own She takes us through the fields of Queen Anne's Lace and clover through woods filled with rock maple and sassafras to places she discovered as a child I am Piedmont born and bred between far hills and sea great hardwoods overhead and waters gently falling down the Bay But these poems also express Randall's uneasiness with trying to exist in a world increasingly divorced from nature They spring from a sensibility that pits memory and its recovery in art against the encroachments of commerce and technology What shall restore cedar and sycamore sweet springs the secrets of the forest floor where now backhoes and scaffoldings and gray computers set us free to manufacture loves and lifeless things along the steely groves where no bird sings Unmistakably a lyric poet Randall varies traditional forms in a way that is both reminiscent and original Her musicality often surprises us into the recognition that poems can still sound like poems In writing about place memory aging and loss Julia Randall displays a wide ranging intelligence a keen eye and a necessary anger as well as joy humor and acceptance

Japanese Death Poems, 1998-04-15 A wonderful introduction the Japanese tradition of jisei this volume is crammed with exquisite spontaneous verse and pithy often hilarious descriptions of the eccentric and committed monastics who wrote the poems Tricycle The Buddhist Review Although the consciousness of death is in most cultures very much a part of life this is perhaps nowhere more true than in Japan where the approach of death has given rise to a centuries old tradition of writing jisei or the death poem Such a poem is often written in the very last moments of the poet's life Hundreds of Japanese death poems many with a commentary describing the circumstances of the poet's death have been translated into English here the vast majority of them for the first time Yoel Hoffmann explores the attitudes and customs surrounding death in historical and present day Japan and gives examples of how these have been reflected in the nation's literature in general The development of writing jisei is then examined from the longing poems of the early nobility and the more masculine verses of the samurai to the satirical death poems of later centuries Zen Buddhist ideas about death are also described as a preface to the collection of Chinese death poems by Zen monks that are also included Finally the last section contains three hundred twenty haiku some of which have never been assembled before in English translation and romanized in Japanese

The Literary History of Saskatchewan David Carpenter, 2014-02-01 Progressions presents another batch of erudite and entertaining essays on a variety of topics covering Saskatchewan's literary development as well as tributes to some of the major contributors to that history and a pictorial glimpse into the past. Writers stopped using typewriters and even moved beyond the Kaypro computer box for their compositions. The Saskatchewan School of the Arts was shut down, ending the Fort St. John writing experience. But the Sage Hill Writing Experience quickly rose to replace it. Saskatchewan literary presses really found their feet and published important and lasting books. A wave of new writers joined the founders of the province's literary tradition. Responding to this growth in the community, the Saskatchewan Book Awards and the Saskatchewan Festival of Words in Moose Jaw came into being. The Saskatchewan writing community stormed out of the 20th Century in a frenzy of creativity and accomplishment. Essay contributors to Volume 2 include Dave Margoshes, Jeanette Lynes, Aritha Van Herk, Alison Calder and seven more. The eleven essays include such topics as To House or House Not The New Saskatchewan, Women Poets, Contemporary Nature Writing in Saskatchewan, Fort St. John, Sage Hill and Brave and Foolish Nonconformists. In addition, literary tributes are offered for Caroline Heath, Pat Krause, Martha Blum and Max Braithwaite.

Stimulus, Intention and Process in Creative Writing Graeme Harper, 2024-02-01 Stimulus, Intention and Process in Creative Writing explores three exciting and key areas of creative writing practice and understanding: What stimulates a writer to write or to write a particular piece? What do they intend to achieve when they do it? And is there a process we can study and perhaps even understand? The authors in this book, who are both practitioners and researchers, explore these three areas in unique and thought-provoking ways. They bring to the discussion both expertise in relation to what we already know and a sense of forward thinking in discussing how we can find out more. This is a book for creative writing researchers and students who are seeking new knowledge about how creative writing is done what informs and encourages those doing it and what results from that knowledge and encouragement It is also potentially a book for creative writing practitioners who wonder how the things that interest them have them writing certain things and the ways they go about approaching undertaking and completing these projects The chapters in this book were originally published in New Writing The International Journal for the Practice and Theory of Creative Writing
