Reducing Urban Unemployment What Works At The Local Level:

Reducing Urban Unemployment William H. McCarthy, 1985-01-01 This booklet considers the problems of urban unemployment and presents 21 case studies of urban areas dealing with the problem The first chapter defines urban unemployment and classifies barriers to employment trends in unemployment and types of unemployed persons Chapter 2 describes some general principles necessary to successfully combat the problem on the local level There are two major considerations which make a program successful 1 differentiating the groups needing help i e disadvantaged youth hard to employ adults and dislocated workers and within these groups identifying the problem specific to where they live and work and 2 specifically tailoring the programs to meet the needs identified above Chapters 3 4 and 5 present the case studies subdivided according to the particular group served disadvantaged youth hard to employ adults dislocated workers Each case study is presented in a summarized form and a contact person is listed at the end of each The sources of initiative for the variety of programs surveyed include local elected officials responsible for nine of the 21 private industry responsible for six community based organizations responsible for five and foundations responsible for one CG An Anthology Regarding Merit Goods Wilfried Ver Eecke, 2007 Merit Goods are those goods and services that the government feels that people will under consume and which therefore ought to be subsidized or provided free at the point of use The consumption of merit goods is thought to generate positive externality effects where the social benefit from consumption exceeds the private benefit Examples of merit goods are health services education public libraries and inoculations against certain diseases Van Eecke has assembled a collection of articles and papers that covers the issue of merit goods from a variety of perspectives and has provided a single source for researchers and economist interested in the issue The work begins with a thorough look at Musgrave's notion of merit goods The subsequent sections expand the definition of merit goods and provide information on the application of merit goods theory in economic philosophical social and religious terms The reference also has an extensive bibliography The Ghetto Underclass William Julius Wilson, 1993-08-17 Sponsored by the American Academy of Political and Social Science William Julius Wilson is a leader in the study of the urban underclass His controversial thesis states that the fragmentation of the black community along class lines has resulted in a group of blacks who have left the inner city for middle class suburban life leaving behind the ghetto underclass of very disadvantaged poor This thesis has had an enormous impact on the study of urban life race and society Originally published as a special issue of the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science The Ghetto Underclass addresses questions from theoretical empirical and policy perspectives Wilson and other leading social scientists cover demographic and industrial transitions family patterns sexual behavior immigration and homelessness of the urban underclass Wilson's introduction updates recent work on this topic since publication of the Annals issue The Ghetto Underclass should be read by all students and professionals of urban studies ethnic studies sociology policy studies political science social work social welfare and education Tenth

Case Studies National Alliance of Business, Inc., Washington, DC., 1987 This collection of 16 case studies is intended to illustrate how the public and private sectors have managed to collaborate in helping workers adapt to changing employment circumstances The case studies are grouped into three categories The first six case studies are examples of programs that have been developed to assist in training for new jobs as a result of business relocation or expansion They illustrate ways in which state assistance either alone or coupled with local money and community and or regional economic development organizations can create new jobs by attracting business to an area Next five case studies show how employer initiated efforts in cooperation with local education and training institutions can help prevent job loss by retraining existing workers so that they can meet changing workplace needs such as the adoption of new equipment or processes The five case studies presented in the third chapter all of which are dislocated worker programs operated under the auspices of the Job Training Partnership Act JTPA reflect strategies for retraining workers who have been laid off from their jobs with little or no prospect of ever returning to them These programs exemplify how employers unions local governments and JTPA Private Industry Councils can join forces to develop dislocated worker programs An annotated bibliography of 13 resources dealing with worker dislocation and training and retraining programs for unemployed and or dislocated workers is appended MN Crime and Urban Insecurity in Europe Congress of Local and Regional Authorities of Europe,Council of Europe,1998-01-01 Making Cities Work for All Data and Actions for Inclusive Growth OECD,2016-10-13 This report provides ground breaking internationally comparable data on economic growth inequalities and well being at the city level in OECD countries and a framework for action to help national and local governments reorient policies towards more inclusive growth in cities
