Reflections of a Country Doctor Barry Ladd, 1996. Meet Barry Ladd. He is a family physician who practiced medicine for thirty years in a small country town forty miles south of a major city. He calls it Our Town because the residents including himself so personally identified with the community. In the thirty years that Ladd practiced in Our Town he delivered fifteen hundred babies and had one hundred and eighty thousand office visits. He delivered the babies of the babies and took care of four generations in the same family. During that time there was an explosion of technology and scientific information. The practice of medicine shifted from being more of an art to being more of a science. During this time Ladd was a participant and observer. He saw how personal events and decisions played out over time. He tells his readers what he saw, heard and felt. These are all true stories. Some are composites of several people. The names have been changed.

The Next Prescription Jimmie L. Ashcraft M. D., 2020-02. An African proverb says It takes an entire village to raise a child. The same can be said of physicians. No one traverses the journey through medical training and private practice by themselves because the stars are aligned just right. The journey demands a considerable supportive effort from a village of many or perhaps many villages. This book contains my reflections upon my 26 years as an old time generalist family physician in rural America. It is merely a collection of stories that depict some of my experiences over the years. The stories mirror those of many of my generalist colleagues who have experienced the trenches of rural primary care. In fact on occasion I introduced myself as nothing more than a full time trenchologist. My stories span the breadth and depth of the discipline of rural family medicine. Stories range from assisting mothers giving birth to caring for and comforting those at the end of life and from performing surgery to becoming involved in one's community. Some are silly some are sad some are funny and some may make you mad.
