Regarding The Pain Of Others:

Regarding the Pain of Others Susan Sontag, 2004-02 Twenty five years after her classic On Photography Sontag returns to the subject of visual representations of war and violence in the culture today She once again changes the way readers think about the uses and meanings of images in the world and offers an important reflection about how war itself is waged and understood

Regarding the Pain of Others Susan Sontag, 2013-10-01 A brilliant clear eyed consideration of the visual representation of violence in our culture its ubiquity meanings and effects Considered one of the greatest critics of her generation Susan Sontag followed up her monumental On Photography with an extended study of human violence reflecting on a question first posed by Virginia Woolf in Three Guineas How in your opinion are we to prevent war For a long time some people believed that if the horror could be made vivid enough most people would finally take in the outrageousness the insanity of war One of the distinguishing features of modern life is that it supplies countless opportunities for regarding at a distance through the medium of photography horrors taking place throughout the world But are viewers inured or incited to violence by the depiction of cruelty Is the viewer's perception of reality eroded by the daily barrage of such images What does it mean to care about the sufferings of others far away First published more than twenty years after her now classic book On Photography which changed how we understand the very condition of being modern Regarding the Pain of Others challenges our thinking not only about the uses and means of images but about how war itself is waged and understood in our time the limits of sympathy and the obligations of conscience

Representations of Pain in Art and Visual Culture Maria Pia Di Bella, James Elkins, 2013-06-26 The presentation of bodies in pain has been a major concern in Western art since the time of the Greeks The Christian tradition is closely entwined with such themes from the central images of the Passion to the representations of bloody martyrdoms The remnants of this tradition are evident in contemporary images from Abu Ghraib In the last forty years the body in pain has also emerged as a recurring theme in performance art Recently authors such as Elaine Scarry Susan Sontag and Giorgio Agamben have written about these themes The scholars in this volume add to the discussion analyzing representations of pain in art and the media Their essays are firmly anchored on consideration of the images not on whatever actual pain the subjects suffered At issue is representation before and often apart from events in the world Part One concerns practices in which the appearance of pain is understood as expressive Topics discussed include the strange dynamics of faked pain and real pain contemporary performance art international photojournalism surrealism and Renaissance and Baroque art Part Two concerns representations that cannot be readily assigned to that genealogy the Chinese form of execution known as lingchi popularly the death of a thousand cuts whippings in the Belgian Congo American lynching photographs Boer War concentration camp photographs and recent American capital punishment These examples do not comprise a single alternate genealogy but are united by the absence of an intention to represent pain The book concludes with a roundtable discussion where the authors discuss the ethical implications of viewing such images Teresa Margolles and the Aesthetics of Death Julia Banwell, 2015-06-15 An extensive in depth study that takes in works from throughout the artist's career The book will be useful for scholars of Margolles and of art history more generally Margolles work is situated within the contexts of the aesthetics and philosophy of death and their application to looking at art from inside and outside Mexico The House of the Pain of Others Julián Herbert, 2019-04-16 A brilliant work of historical excavation with profound echoes in an age redolent with violence and xenophobia Early in the twentieth century amid the myths of progress and modernity that underpinned Mexico's ruling party some three hundred Chinese immigrants close to half of the Cantonese residents of the newly founded city of Torreón were massacred over the course of three days It is considered the largest slaughter of Chinese people in the history of the Americas but more than a century later the facts continue to be elusive mistaken and repressed And what do you know about the Chinese people who were killed here Julián Herbert asks anyone who will listen An exorcism of persistent and discomfiting ghosts The House of the Pain of Others attempts a reckoning with the 1911 massacre Looping digressive and cinematic Herbert blends reportage personal reflection essay and academic research to portray the historical context as well as the lives of the perpetrators and victims of the small genocide This brilliant historical excavation echoes profoundly in an age redolent with violence and xenophobia Pleasure and Pain in US Public Culture Christopher J. Remembering the Cold War David Lowe, Tony Joel, 2014-01-21 Remembering the Cold War examines how more than two decades since the collapse of the Soviet Union Cold War legacies continue to play crucial roles in defining national identities and shaping international relations around the globe Given the Cold War's blurred definition it has neither a widely accepted commencement date nor unanimous conclusion what is to be remembered This book illustrates that there is in fact a huge body of remembrance and that it is more pertinent to ask what should be included and what can be overlooked Over five sections this richly illustrated volume considers case studies of Cold War remembering from different parts of the world and engages with growing theorisation in the field of memory studies specifically in relation to war David Lowe and Tony Joel afford careful consideration to agencies that identify with being victims of the Cold War In addition the concept of arenas of articulation which envelops the myriad spaces in which the remembering commemorating memorialising and even revising of Cold War history takes place is given prominence

The Ethics of Everyday Life Michael Banner, 2014-10-23 The moments in Christ's human life noted in the creeds his conception birth suffering death and burial are events which would likely appear in a syllabus for a course in social anthropology for they are of special interest and concern in human life and also sites of contention and controversy where what it is to be human is discovered constructed and contested In other words these are the occasions for profound and continuing questioning regarding the meaning of human life as controversies to do with IVF abortion euthanasia and the use of bodies or body parts post mortem plainly indicate Thus the following questions arise how do the instances in Christ's life represent human life and how do these representations relate to present day cultural norms expectations and newly emerging modes of relationship themselves shaping and framing human life How does the Christian imagination of human life which dwells on and draws from the life of Christ not only articulate its own but also come into conversation with and engage other moral imaginaries of the human Michael Banner argues that consideration of these questions requires study of moral theology therefore he reconceives its nature and tasks and in particular its engagement with social anthropology Drawing from social anthropology and Christian thought and practice from many periods and influenced especially by his engagement in public policy matters including as a member of the UK's Human Tissue Authority Banner aims to develop the outlines of an everyday ethics stretching from before the cradle to after the grave
