Making Health Policy, 2016-08-29 What shapes health policy Current thinking dictates that scientific evidence should be the basis for policy making in healthcare but is this a new approach and how has it developed Making Health Policy shows how networks in science and the media have established a dialogue for policy making since 1945 Surprisingly many of the networks influencing health policy are not political ones central to public discussion Instead scientific networks have shaped policies on public health based upon findings of chronic disease epidemiology For policies on illicit drugs the clinical experience of a small group of psychiatrists held sway And ironically in an ever cost conscious world high technology areas such as renal dialysis saw economic considerations diminish as time passed Health pressure groups entered the equation and the last half of the twentieth century witnessed the rise of the media as the defining agency in the science policy relationship Making Health Policy is the first historical study to explore the unspoken links between science and recent health policy Who Cares? Gareth Mallon, 2018-04-19 First Published in 2018 CRC Press is an imprint of Taylor Francis an Informa company This book looks behind the headlines and explains in a simple straightforward way what has happened to our NHS and what future waits in store Innovations in Health and Medicine Jenny Stanton, 2012-12-06 This volume brings together cutting edge research by historians from Britain Germany France the US Japan and New Zealand Innovative in its approach to innovation it focuses on diffusion and resistance and organization as well as technology The collection features issues such as control and compliance professional power and economic constraint cultural divides configured users and ingenuity The introductory essay relates the collection to history and sociology of innovation and technology asking what is distinctive about medicine and health Explorations of recent cases along with deeper probing of the past century call into question how the past relates to the future Health policy makers and analysts practitioners users and historians will find the editor s claims for the uses of history provocative With its emphasis on clarity of writing its mix of empirical details and analysis and its rich bibliography this volume offers rewards to academic and health service readers alike Integrated Water Resources Management in Water-scarce Regions Stefan Liehr, Johanna Kramm, Alexander Jokisch, Katharina Müller, 2018-03-15 The research project CuveWaters developed and implemented adapted technologies and accompanying measures to support the national process towards an Integrated Water Resources Management IWRM The aim is to give people in the Cuvelai Etosha Basin reliable access to clean water over the long term thus enhancing their livelihood and health and to create job opportunities IWRM relies on solutions that use various sources types and qualities of water for different purposes CuveWaters implemented pilot plants for rain and floodwater harvesting groundwater desalination as well as facilities for sanitation and water reuse Technical components of the project were framed by societal and scientific components Integrated Water Resources Management in Water scarce Regions provides a comprehensive view on the complexity and interconnectedness of findings and conclusions regarding the principle strategic approach within the CuveWaters project s concept The book aims to present the work of technical social and natural scientists but also of media professionals It gives thematically focussed details on the three technology based solutions which go beyond mere technical considerations and embed this into the overarching process towards IWRM in Namibia Finally it critically addresses lessons learnt and limits of projects in the context of research for implementation This book is of great value to experts professionals and also students and academics in the areas of water management technology development and implementation and transdisciplinary science Pharmaceutical Ethics Sam Salek,Andrew

Edgar,2003-04-04 Pharmaceutical Ethics is an important text which aims to provide the ethical guidelines much needed by the pharmaceutical industry By focusing on many of the central issues such as the ethical aspects of clinical trials informed consent physician or patient choice and pharmaceutical advertising this text will provide very good coverage of an area which perhaps still lacks coherent instruction Covers ethical issues involved in the testing and use of pharmaceuticals on human beings Investigates issues such as whether choice of drug should lie with the physician or the patient Looks at a wide variety of subjects connected with pharmaceutical ethics Focuses specifically on the issues surrounding the pharmaceutical industry not medicine in general Fulfils an important need in the Pharmaceutical Industry Unmet Need in Psychiatry

Gavin Andrews,Scott Henderson,2000-01-06 This book considers ways to resolve the imbalance between the demand and supply of mental health services Treatment services in most countries reach only a minority of people identified as suffering from a mental disorder Few countries can provide adequate health services for all the mentally ill yet none has developed a rational system to decide who should be treated The questions are clear Could we develop a staged treatment process to reach all in need If not how do we decide who to treat What should the criteria be for deployment of scarce treatment resources How do we determine such criteria What are the ethical implications of applying such criteria In this pioneering work an international team of eminent psychiatrists epidemiologists health administrators economists and health planners examine these questions The result will inform and encourage all concerned with the equitable provision of mental health care Commissioning for Health and Well-Being Jon Glasby,2012-01-18 Commissioning is now a key task for health and social care and yet policy aspirations often outstrip the infrastructure needed to support commissioners as they take difficult decisions about future services and to make commissioning a career of choice for future leaders While commissioning was important under New Labour it seems set to be even more fundamental now as commissioners think about future services in an era of austerity Against this background this is the first comprehensive text on a key area of management practice exploring what commissioning is where it has come from and where it might be taking us With a wide range of leading contributors from fields including health care social care local government the book takes students practitioners and managers through key stages of the commissioning cycle as well as addressing cross cutting themes such as the economics of commissioning user involvement and commissioning in an era of personalisation It is essential reading for everyone involved in the planning and delivery of health and social care for social policy students health and social care practitioners managers and policy makers alike The Cambridge Textbook of Bioethics Peter A. Singer,A. M. Viens,2008-01-31
