and even if the only clap boarded dwelling on the property had not been occupied by the miller we should have disdained it for the log cabin in which we took up our home till we could build a new house Our cabin stood close upon the road but behind it broadened a cornfield of eighty acres They still built log cabins for dwellings in that region forty years ago but ours must have been nearly half a century old when we went into it It had been recently vacated by an old Virginian couple who had long occupied it and we decided that it needed some repairs to make it habitable even for a family inured to hardship by dauntless imaginations and accustomed to retrospective discomforts of every kind My Year in a Log Cabin:

Biography William Dean Howells, 2019-02-22 A log cabin is a small log house especially a less finished or architecturally sophisticated structure Log cabins have an ancient history in Europe and in America are often associated with first generation home building by settlers William Dean Howells March 1 1837 May 11 1920 was an American realist novelist literary critic and playwright nicknamed The Dean of American Letters He was particularly known for his tenure as editor of The Atlantic Monthly as well as for his own prolific writings including the Christmas story Christmas Every Day and the novels The Rise of Silas Lapham and A Traveler from Altruria Early life and family William Dean Howells was born on March 1 1837 in Martinsville Ohio now known as Martins Ferry Ohio to William Cooper Howells and Mary Dean Howells the second of eight children His father was a newspaper editor and printer who moved frequently around Ohio In 1840 the family settled in Hamilton Ohio where his father oversaw a Whig newspaper and followed Swedenborgianism Their nine years there were the longest period that they stayed in one place The family had to live frugally although the young Howells was encouraged by his parents in his literary interests He began at an early age to help his father with typesetting and printing work a job known at the time as a printer's devil In 1852 his father arranged to have one of his poems published in the Ohio State Journal without telling him Literary criticism In addition to his own creative works Howells also wrote criticism and essays about contemporary literary figures such as Henrik Ibsen mile Zola Giovanni Verga Benito P rez Gald s and especially Leo Tolstoy which helped establish their reputations in the United States He also wrote critically in support of American writers Hamlin Garland Stephen Crane Emily Dickinson Mary E Wilkins Freeman Paul Laurence Dunbar Sarah Orne Jewett Charles W Chesnutt Abraham Cahan Madison Cawein and Frank Norris It is perhaps in this role that he had his greatest influence In his Editor's Study column at The Atlantic Monthly and later at Harper's he formulated and disseminated his theories of realism in literature Howells viewed realism as nothing more and nothing less than the truthful treatment of material In defense of the real as opposed to the ideal he wrote I hope the time is coming when not only the artist but the common average man who always has the standard of the arts in his power will have also the courage to apply it and will reject the ideal grasshopper wherever he finds it in science in literature in art because it is not simple natural and honest because it is not like a real grasshopper But I will own that I think the time is yet far off and that the people who have been brought up on the ideal grasshopper the heroic grasshopper the impassioned grasshopper the self devoted adventurous good old romantic card board grasshopper must die out before the simple honest and natural grasshopper can have a fair field Howells believed the future of American writing was not in poetry but in novels a form which he saw shifting from romance to a serious form Howells was a Christian socialist whose ideals were greatly influenced by Russian writer Leo Tolstoy He joined a Christian socialist group in Boston between 1889 and 1891 and attended several churches including the First Spiritual Temple and the Church of the Carpenter the latter being affiliated with the Episcopal Church and the Society of Christian Socialists These influences led him to write on issues of social justice from a moral and egalitarian point of view being critic of the social effects of industrial capitalism He was however not a Marxist Thiede, 1998 This third book by popular log home authors Cindy Thiede and Art Thiede brings the scale of log homes back to practical reality. It features owner built homes, recycled log homes, and historical renovations. The Thiedes also show some stunning examples of personal details that make a home stand out. In addition, log builder Art Thiede leads the reader through the steps of designing and constructing a small log building. Filled with exceptional color photographs of log homes that reflect the personalities and lifestyles of their owners, Hands on Log Homes tells of people with extraordinary stories of determination and purpose. Most of them had regular jobs and regular incomes, but for many, a handcrafted log home would not have been financially possible without the generous infusion of their own sweat equity. For others, taking on a house building project with logs was the opportunity to challenge their own resourcefulness, vent powerful creative energy, and say loud and clear, "Yes, I can." Cindy Thiede and her husband Art Thiede have spent almost twenty years photographing and writing about log home architecture in the United States. Not only have the couple designed, built, and recycled log homes for themselves and other clients, but they have crisscrossed the country three times over in their efforts to study and document the architectural legacy of logs.
