Roly Ruth C.L. Gritsch, 1988 From New Haven to Nineveh and Beyond Benjamin Foster, 2023-09-01 Over the course of three centuries Yale has been actively and seriously engaged in Near Eastern learning in both senses of the term training students in the knowledge and skills needed to understand the languages and civilizations of the region and supporting generations of scholars renowned for their erudition and pathbreaking research This book traces the history of these endeavors through extensive use of unpublished archival materials including letters diaries and records of institutional decisions Developments at Yale are set against the wider background of changing American attitudes toward the Near East as well as evolving ideas about the role of the academy and its curriculum in educating undergraduate and graduate students In the case of the Near East this also involves considering how several of its disciplines made the transition from biblically motivated enterprises to secular fields of study Yale has notable firsts to her credit the first American professional program in Arabic and Sanskrit the first American learned society and periodical devoted to Oriental subjects the first American research institutes in Jerusalem and Baghdad the first American university to have endowed funds to establish and curate one of the world's largest collections of cuneiform tablets and cylinder seals Yet at the same time especially over the past half century Yale has found it challenging to deal administratively with a small humanities department whose standards and philosophy of teaching and learning seemed increasingly at odds with trends in the university as a whole This book places these tensions in the context of Yale's responses to post World War 2 interest in the modern Middle East the rise of government supported area studies and the consequences of American military actions in Iraq and Afghanistan Numerous illustrations many of them previously unpublished and drawn from a wide range of source material round out the portrait of three centuries of Near Eastern learning at Yale
