Idea for teachers to assess higher DOK.

- Have students make predictions in their notes.
- Challenge students to make predictions, then quiz them again after the lesson or unit so they can see their improvement.
- Have all students stand up and predict each answer with whiteboards, or "signing" the answer, or by raising left hand for true, right hand for false, etc.). Students who get it correct get to remain standing. Incorrect answers sit down. Last student standing wins!
- Ask students to come up with their own list of Fact or Fiction at the end of the unit to quiz each other.

periods of massive tectonic shifts in the legal and literary landscapes the Republic and Empire of Rome have not until now been the focus of interdisciplinary study in this field This volume brings vital new material to the attention of the law and literature movement An interdisciplinary approach is at the heart of this volume specialists in Roman law rarely engage in constructive dialogue with specialists in Latin literature and vice versa but this volume bridges that divide It shows how literary scholars are eager to examine the importance of law in literature or the juridical nature of Latin literature while Romanists are ready to embrace the interactions between literary and legal discourse This collection capitalizes on the opportunity to open a fruitful dialogue between scholars of Latin literature and Roman law and thus makes a major much needed contribution to the growing field of law and literature
