The Curious Eye Erin Webster, 2020-02-20 The Curious Eye explores early modern debates over two related questions what are the limits of human vision and to what extent can these limits be overcome by technological enhancement In our everyday lives we rely on optical technology to provide us with information about visually remote spaces even as we question the efficacy and ethics of such pursuits But the debates surrounding the subject of technologically mediated vision have their roots in a much older literary tradition in which the ability to see beyond the limits of natural human vision is associated with philosophical and spiritual insight as well as social and political control The Curious Eye provides insight into the subject of optically mediated vision by returning to the literature of the seventeenth century the historical moment in which human visual capacity in the West was first extended through the application of optical technologies to the eye Bringing imaginative literary works by Francis Bacon John Milton Margaret Cavendish and Aphra Behn together with optical and philosophical treatises by Johannes Kepler Ren Descartes Robert Hooke Robert Boyle and Isaac Newton the volume explores the social and intellectual impact of the new optical technologies of the seventeenth century on its literature At the same time it demonstrates that social political and literary concerns are not peripheral to the optical science of the period but rather an integral part of it the legacy of which we continue to experience

The Foundations of Newton's Alchemy B. J. T. Dobbs, 1983-04-29 This book sets the foundations of Newton's alchemy in their historical context in Restoration England. It is shown that alchemical modes of thought were quite strong in many of those who provided the dynamism for the scientific revolution of the seventeenth century and that these modes of thought had important relationships with general movements for reform in the same period.
