The Forest Guide: Scotland Gabriel Hemery,2023-04-13 A guide to exploring 365 of Scotland s most scenic wildlife rich and historically significant woodlands From the precious fragments of Caledonian pine forest to lesser known wildwoods and urban copses Scottish woodlands offer places of sanctuary both for wildlife and for people In this practical guide Gabriel Hemery brings together the beauty purpose history wildlife and ownership of some of the most extraordinary woodland sites in the country from the largest the Forest of Ae which covers more than 10 000 hectares to the smallest Halligarth in the Shetland Islands measuring less than a third of a hectare and everything in between Some woods are notable for having the tallest or rarest trees others are the best places in the country for spotting ospreys or red squirrels or even marine mammals some are known as the best places to explore preserved archaeological features discovering hidden histories or simply enjoying spectacular scenery Divided into 14 regions each beginning with a summary of the region s woodland heritage this guide features 365 sites including details of ownership designation area forest type how to access it including grid reference post code and what3words reference alongside a description of the site s key features Featuring more than 200 stunning photographs of Scotland s plants animals and spectacular landscapes and expert region maps to help guide you to your nearest forest site this is an essential book for adventurers ramblers and wildlife enthusiasts Wherever you may be in Scotland with this guide you will never be far from a fascinating forest site

Social Indicators in the Forest Sector in Northern Europe Tuija Sievänen,2013-12-02 Forest related social values such as recreation values are growing in importance in North European countries Our urbanized societies need social services from forests and other nature areas One of the key ecosystem services is the recreation environment provided by forests Possibilities to enhance commercial recreational use of forests has been recognized particularly among private forest owners who have new opportunities for new types of forest related entrepreneurship This report provides a review of social indicators in forestry particularly concerning nature based recreation and tourism in North European countries The common interest among scientists and other experts was to discuss how to develop social indicators and to monitor changes to social benefits in forestry and forest use In all countries there is a challenge to develop monitoring systems to produce inventory data for statistics that are required in a way that provides comparable social indicators It is timely to enhance standardization and harmonization of social indicators for monitoring and management of sustainable forestry and forest use and for sustainable nature based recreation and tourism

Patterns and Processes in Forest Landscapes Raffaele Laforzezza, Jiquan Chen, Giovanni Sanesi, Thomas R. Crow,2008-08-30 Increasing evidence suggests that the composition and spatial configuration the pattern of forest landscapes affect many ecological processes including the movement and persistence of particular species the susceptibility and spread of disturbances such as fires or pest outbreaks and the redistribution of matter and nutrients Understanding these issues is key to the successful management of complex multifunctional forest landscapes and landscape ecology based on a foundation of island biogeography and meta population dynamic theories provides the rationale to deal with this pattern to process interaction at different spatial and temporal scales This carefully edited volume represents a stimulating addition to the international literature on landscape ecology and resource management It provides key insights into some of the applicable landscape ecological theories that underlie forest management with a specific focus on how forest management can benefit from landscape ecology and how landscape ecology can be advanced by tackling challenging problems in forest landscape management It also presents a series of case studies from Europe Asia North America Africa and Australia exploring the issues of disturbance diversity management and scale and with a specific focus on how human intervention affects forest landscapes and in turn how landscapes influence humans and their culture An important reference for advanced students and researchers in landscape ecology conservation biology forest ecology natural resource management and ecology across multiple scales the book will also appeal to researchers and practitioners in reserve design ecological restoration forest management landscape planning and landscape architecture

Traditional Forest-Related Knowledge

John A. Parrotta, Ronald L. Trosper,2011-10-14 Exploring a topic of vital and ongoing importance Traditional Forest Knowledge examines the history current status and trends in the development and application of traditional forest knowledge by local and indigenous communities worldwide It considers the interplay between traditional beliefs and practices and formal forest science and interrogates the often uneasy relationship between these different knowledge systems The contents also highlight efforts to conserve and promote traditional forest management practices that balance the environmental economic and social objectives of forest management It places these efforts in the context of recent trends towards the devolution of forest management authority in many parts of the world The book includes regional chapters covering North America South America Africa Europe Asia and the Australia Pacific region As well as relating the general factors mentioned above to these specific areas these chapters cover issues of special regional significance such as the importance of traditional knowledge and practices for food security economic development and cultural identity Other chapters examine topics ranging from key policy issues to the significant programs of regional and international organisations and from research ethics and best practices for scientific study of traditional knowledge to the adaptation of traditional forest knowledge to climate change and globalisation

The Ancient Pinewoods of Scotland Clifton Bain, 2022-07-17 Scattered across the Scottish Highlands are the last surviving remnants of the Caledonian forest which have survived naturally seeding and growing since the last ice age Visiting these ancient woods provides an emotional connection to the past with visible traces of the people who lived and worked there over the centuries There is also a chance to look forward after one of the greatest conservation success stories means a new future for the pinewoods and their spectacular wildlife This journey to the pinewoods introduces a natural wonder alongside a rich cultural heritage

Conquering the Highlands Jan Oosthoek, 2013-02-01 Deforestation of Scotland began millennia ago and by the early 20th century woodland cover was down to about 6 per cent of the total land area A century later woodland cover had tripled Most of the newly established forestry plantations were created on elevated land with wet peaty soils and high wind exposure not exactly the condition in which forests naturally thrive Jan Oosthoek tells in this book the story of how 20th century foresters devised ways to successfully reforest the poor Scottish uplands land that was regarded as unplantable to fulfil the mandate they had received from the Government and wider society to create a timber reserve He raises the question whether the adopted forestry practice was the only viable means to create forests in the Scottish Highlands by examining debates within the forestry community about the appearance of the forests and their longterm ecological prospects Finally the book argues that the long held ecological convictions among foresters and pressure from environmentalists came together in the late 20th century to create more environmentally sensitive forestry
