Mary Lavin Angeline A. Kelly, 1987      Irish Women Writers and the Modern Short Story Elke D'hoker, 2016-07-28 This book traces the development of the modern short story in the hands of Irish women writers from the 1890s to the present George Egerton Somerville and Ross Elizabeth Bowen Mary Lavin Edna O'Brien Anne Enright and Claire Keegan are only some of the many Irish women writers who have made lasting contributions to the genre of the modern short story yet their achievements have often been marginalized in literary histories which typically define the Irish short story in terms of its oral heritage nationalist concerns rural realism and outsider hero Through a detailed investigation of the short fiction of fifteen prominent writers this study aims to open up this critical conceptualization of the Irish short story to the formal properties and thematic concerns women writers bring to the genre What stands out in thematic terms is an abiding interest in human relations whether of love the family or the larger community In formal terms this book traces the overall development of the Irish short story highlighting both the lines of influence that connect these writers and the specific use each individual author makes of the short story form      A History of the Irish Short Story Heather Ingman, 2009-05-14 Though the short story is often regarded as central to the Irish canon this text was the first comprehensive study of the genre for many years Heather Ingman traces the development of the modern short story in Ireland from its beginnings in the nineteenth century to the present day Her study analyses the material circumstances surrounding publication examining the role of magazines and editors in shaping the form Ingman incorporates recent critical thinking on the short story traces international connections and gives a central part to Irish women's short stories Each chapter concludes with a detailed analysis of key stories from the period discussed featuring Joyce Edna O'Brien and John McGahern among others With its comprehensive bibliography and biographies of authors this volume will be a key work of reference for scholars and students both of Irish fiction and of the modern short story as a genre      Irish Literature Maureen O'Rourke Murphy, James MacKillop, 1987      Irish Women Writers Ann Owens Weekes, 2021-10-21 From the legendary poet Oisín to modernist masters like James Joyce William Butler Yeats and Samuel Beckett Ireland's literary tradition has made its mark on the Western canon Despite its proud tradition the student who searches the shelves for works on Irish women's fiction is liable to feel much as Virginia Woolf did when she searched the British Museum for work on women by women Critic Nuala O Faolain when confronted with this disparity suggested that modern Irish literature is dominated by men so brilliant in their misanthropy that the self-respect of Irish women is radically and paradoxically checkmated by respect for an Irish national achievement While Ann Owen Weekes does not argue with the first part of O Faolain's assertion she does with the second In Irish Women Writers An Uncharted Tradition she suggests that it is the critics rather than the writers who have allowed themselves to be checkmated Beginning with Maria Edgeworth's Castle Rackrent 1800 and ending with Jennifer Johnston's The Railway Station 1980 she surveys the best of the Ireland's female literature to show its artistic and historic significance and to demonstrate that it has its own themes and traditions related to yet separate from that of male Irish writers Weekes examines the work of writers like E O E Sumerville and Martin Ross pen names for cousins Edith Somerville and Violet Martin Elizabeth Bowen Kate O'Brien Mary Lavin and Molly Keane among others She teases out the themes that recur in these writers' works including the link between domestic and political violence and re-visioning of traditional stories such as Julia O'Faolain's use of the Cuchulain and Diarmuid and Grainne myths to reveal the negation of women's autonomy In doing so she demonstrates that the literature of Anglo and Gaelic Irish women presents a unified tradition of subjects and techniques a unity that might become an optimistic model not only for Irish literature but also for Irish people

Riverbank and Seashore in Nineteenth and Twentieth Century British Literature Gillian Mary Hanson, 2005-11-17 The waters of river and sea represent a kind of freedom a liberty which as Iris Murdoch writes enables man to exist sanely without fear and to perceive what is real As settings in fiction the riverbank and seashore are rich in potential offering a sense of destiny and suggesting the possibility of self-truth and self-knowledge In British literature the rural coastal setting shadowed by cliffs tugged by the constant movement of the sea becomes the site of revelation and generates the energy that brings characters to a new level of self-awareness The river's embankments bridges and tunnels often mark specific stages of revelation and movement in plot Entrapment and isolation contingency and communication are themes that seem born of such settings This book examines the ways in which 21 modern and postmodern writers from Tennyson to Ted Hughes from Jane Austen to Jane Gardam have made use of the physical environment of riverbank and seashore in their work It considers how each author employs the physical settings in the service of plot and character development and how those settings are used to connect with some of the major intellectual concerns of the late 19th and 20th centuries Appendices offer significant quotations from the texts under discussion arranged according to the location they describe the rural river the urban river river into sea the rural shore and the urban shore

Folk Women and Indirection in Morrison, N Dhuibhne, Hurston, and Lavin Jacqueline Fulmer, 2017-11-30 Focusing on the lineage of pivotal African American and Irish women writers the author argues that these authors often employ strategies of indirection via folkloric expression when exploring unpopular topics This strategy holds the attention of readers who would otherwise reject the subject matter The author traces the line of descent from Mary Lavin to N Dhuibhne and from Zora Neale Hurston to Toni Morrison showing how obstacles to free expression though varying from those Lavin and Hurston faced are still encountered by Morrison and N Dhuibhne The basis for comparing these authors lies in the strategies of indirection they use as influenced by folklore The folkloric characters these authors depict wild denizens of the Otherworld and wise women of various traditions help their creators insert controversy into fiction in ways that charm rather than alienate readers Forms of rhetorical indirection that appear in the context of folklore such as signifying practices masking sly civility and the grotesque or bizarre come out of the mouths and actions of these writers magical and magisterial characters Old traditions can offer new ways of discussing issues such as sexual expression religious beliefs or issues of reproduction As differences between times and cultures affect what can and cannot be said folkloric indirection may open up a vista to discourses of which we as readers may not even be aware Finally the folk women of Morrison N Dhuibhne Hurston and Lavin open up new points of entry to the discussion of fiction rhetoric censorship and folklore
