Phototherapy In The Newborn An Overview:

Phototherapy in the Newborn Gerard B. Odell, Robert Schaffer, Artemis P. Simopoulos, 1974 Symposium on Biological Effects and Measurement of Light Sources DeWitt G. Hazzard, 1976 The Science of Photomedicine J.D. Regan, 2012-12-06 Although the history of photomedicine dates back thousands of years with even preliterate cultures appreciating the healing properties of sunlight for many workers in the discipline photomedicine is associated with the observation about 100 years ago of Niels Finsen a Danish physician Finsen recognized that people with tuberculosis who lived in Norway and who had very little exposure to sunlight often developed facial lesions lupus vulgaris which would decrease and sometimes disappear during the summer months This very observant physician reasoned that artificial light ought to produce the same effect as sunlight and began utilizing the radiation from the newly available carbon arc At first he used a glass lens to concentrate the radiation but since this produced considerable burning he replaced this with a hollow glass lens filled with water However while this reduced the heat burns it did not actually duplicate the effect of direct sunlight Finally using a hollow lens filled with water but equipped with quartz windows Finsen was able to imitate even improve upon the effect of sunlight As a result lupus vulgaris was practically eliminated from the Scandinavian countries in 1928 by the establishment of an international organization for photobiology under the title Comité International de la Lumière C I L. Its present title Comité International de Photobiologie C I P was adopted at a meeting in Paris in 1951. The first of a series of international congresses on photobiology was held in 1954 and probably represents the beginning of modern day photobiology. Medical men were prominent in the activities of the old C I L for the importance of natural sunlight in human health and disease was obvious though not well understood. The bringing together of physicians with physicists, chemists and biologists from the pure and applied branches of their subjects was the aim of the older C I L and continues to the present day through the C I P.
