Fagan, 2016-06-17 This short account of the discipline of archaeology tells of spectacular discoveries and the colorful lives of the archaeologists who made them as well as of changing theories and current debates in the field. Spanning over two thousand years of history the book details early digs as well as covering the development of archaeology as a multidisciplinary science, the modernization of meticulous excavation methods during the twentieth century and the important discoveries that led to new ideas about the evolution of human societies. A Brief History of Archaeology is a vivid narrative that will engage readers who are new to the discipline, drawing on the authors' extensive experience in the field and classroom. Early research at Stonehenge in Britain, burial mound excavations and the exploration of Herculaneum and Pompeii culminate in the nineteenth-century debates over human antiquity and the theory of evolution. The book then moves on to the discovery of the world's pre-industrial civilizations in Egypt, Mesopotamia and Central America, the excavations at Troy and Mycenae, the Royal Burials at Ur, Iraq and the dramatic finding of the pharaoh Tutankhamun in 1922. The book concludes by considering recent sensational discoveries such as the Lords of Sipán in Peru and exploring the debates over processual and postprocessual theory which have intrigued archaeologists in the early 21st century. The second edition updates this respected introduction to one of the sciences' most fascinating disciplines. The Reliquary and Illustrated Archaeologist, 1898 Life-writing in the History of Archaeology Gabriel Moshenska, Clare Lewis, 2023-07-10 Life writing is a vital part of the history of archaeology and a growing field of scholarship within the discipline. The lives of archaeologists are entangled with histories of museums and collections, developments in science and scholarship and narratives of nationalism and colonialism into the present. In recent years life writing has played an important role in the surge of new research in the history of archaeology, including ground-breaking studies of discipline formation, institutionalisation and social and intellectual networks. Sources such as diaries, wills, film and the growing body of digital records are powerful tools for highlighting the contributions of hitherto marginalised archaeological lives, including many pioneering women, hired labourers and other hidden hands. This book brings together critical perspectives on life writing in the history of archaeology from leading figures in the field. These include studies of archive formation and use, the concept of dig writing as a distinctive genre of archaeological creativity and reviews of new sources for already well-known lives. Several chapters reflect on the experience of life writing, review the historiography of the field and assess the intellectual value and significance of life writing as a genre. Together they work to problematise underlying assumptions.
