Thiago de Almeida, David L. Rodrigues, 2025-01-16 The topic of loving relationships is one of the most important and often problematic areas of people's lives. Unfortunately, such importance is best perceived when relationships are unsatisfactory and/or threatened by the possibility of an imminent breakup. When that happens, our mood, our ability to concentrate, our energy, our work, and our health, among other dimensions of our lives, can be profoundly affected. Although contemporary love life appears to be markedly different from that of predecessor generations, given the wide range of current relationships, as the hook-up, living together, separate cohabitation, virtual love, or even betrayal, among many other forms of loving interaction, we live in a time when relationships between two or more people seem to need more understanding and more accurate research. However, studying love scientifically is a hard task because of methodological difficulties and conceptual improprieties intrinsically related to this type of investigation. Because it can be considered such a familiar concept, many researchers should agree on what love is and how it can be measured. But this is not what occurs. After all, what is love? Is it as a psychological phenomenon capable of being scientifically studied by psychology? The goal of this Research Topic is to promote and disseminate publications related to what is conceived scientifically as the Psychology of Love, differing from conceptions related to self-help and common sense. Conceptualize love through psychological science. Systematize knowledge about the nature of love and related phenomena, such as jealousy, shyness, inhibition, infidelity, and other related topics. Understand conceptualizations of love and relationship dynamics of people in monogamous and consensually non-monogamous relationships. Research the establishment and maintenance of romantic relationships and try to understand scientifically the role of love in marital satisfaction.

Identical Twins Mvikeli Ncube, 2018-06-12 In Identical Twins The Social Construction and Performance of Identity in Culture and Society Ncube conceptualises twin identity as a multi layered dynamic that changes through performance and explores twin identity through a social constructionist approach Until now mainstream twin studies have mostly sought to explain social phenomena about twins from inside the person providing their explanations in terms of internal entities such as personality structures with an obvious underlying essentialist assumption By examining the theories of Michel Foucault and Judith Butler Ncube shows that the identity of twins is managed in both an academic and cultural context and in relation to specific audiences Relocating the explanations that we gather in social research including in qualitative research in psychology the book focuses its enquiry on the social practices and interactions that people engage in with each other not delving inside the person Using real world twin accounts the book maps out the social construction of twin identity and allows for the twins own voices to be examined in relation to twin experiences Also addressing aspects of being misunderstood as well as the idea of misunderstanding oneself this is fascinating reading for students and researchers in critical and cultural psychology and anyone interested in twin studies
