Ashfield, 1998 In this new volume Andrew Ashfield illustrates how women extended the horizons of Romanticism by their insistent engagement with social issues such as slavery child labor and women workers His previous volume Romantic Women Poets 1770 1838 explored how women poets made important contributions to major areas of Romanticism such as landscape and seascape Together these two volumes add new dimensions to the study of Romanticism by showing how the solitary meditation by the sea developed concurrently with major social concerns Ashfield exposes a much more complicated relationship between the self and society than has previously prevailed in our assessments of Romanticism Colonial

Australian Women Poets Katie Hansord, 2021-01-08 My book traces the significant poetic and political contributions made by non canonical women poets situating women s poetry both in colonial Australian print culture and in wider imperial and transnational contexts Women poets in colonial Australia have tended to be represented as marginal and isolated figures or absent This study intervenes by demonstrating an alternative networked tradition of transnational feminist poetics and politics beyond and around emergent masculine nationalism particularly within newspapers and periodical print culture Without the inclusion of periodical literature women's poetry in Australia during the colonial period would appear to have been fairly limited When periodical literature is taken into account this picture is radically altered and poets emerge as consistent contributors often across a variety of newspapers and journals who were well known influential and connected with political figures and literary circles In examining this poetry in the original context of the newspapers and journals the political intervention and the reception of that poetry is made much more apparent Romantic Women Poets Andrew Ashfield,1994 Andrew Ashfield provides an important feminist document and a genuine means of unravelling Romanticism in Romantic Women Poets an anthology of some 180 poems from the period 1770 to 1838 British Women Poets and the Romantic Writing Community Stephen C.
