Barbarous Antiquity Miriam Jacobson, 2014-08-25 In the late sixteenth century English merchants and diplomats ventured into the eastern Mediterranean to trade directly with the Turks the keepers of an important emerging empire in the Western Hemisphere and these initial exchanges had a profound effect on English literature While the theater investigated representations of religious and ethnic identity in its portrayals of Turks and Muslims poetry Miriam Jacobson argues explored East West exchanges primarily through language and the material text Just as English markets were flooded with exotic goods so was the English language awash in freshly imported words describing items such as sugar jewels plants spices paints and dyes as well as technological advancements such as the use of Arabic numerals in arithmetic and the concept of zero Even as these Eastern words and imports found their way into English poetry poets wrestled with paying homage to classical authors and styles In Barbarous Antiquity Jacobson reveals how poems adapted from Latin or Greek sources and set in the ancient classical world were now reoriented to reflect a contemporary mercantile Ottoman landscape As Renaissance English writers including Shakespeare Jonson Marlowe and Chapman weighed their reliance on classical poetic models against contemporary cultural exchanges a new form of poetry developed positioned at the crossroads of East and West ancient and modern Building each chapter around the intersection of an Eastern import and a classical model Jacobson shows how Renaissance English poetry not only reconstructed the classical past but offered a critique of that very enterprise with a new set of words and metaphors imported from the East
