DROR ABEND-DAVID

Scorned My Nation A Comparison Of Transl

Susanne M. Cadera, Anita Pavic Pintaric

Scorned My Nation A Comparison Of Transl:

"Scorned My Nation" Dror Abend-David, 2003 By comparing versions of Shakespeare's play in three languages reveals changing social and political perspectives relating to Jews and stereotypes about them The histories of the reception of The Merchant of Venice reveal continuing reciprocal relations among the three cultures In Germany the center of the play shifted from Elizabethan romantic comedy to the character of the Jew who became an important figure in a country involved in determining who was a German and who was an alien The latter stereotype culminated in the Nazi image of the Jew Both the Yiddish and Hebrew translations presented counter images of the Jew either as a moral foil to immoral Christians or in tragic or heroic opposition to antisemites In postwar Germany the play has served as a point of departure for discussions about German Jewish relations in general and the Holocaust in particular

The Voices of Suspense and Their

Translation in Thrillers Susanne M. Cadera, Anita Pavic Pintaric, 2014-03-05 The volume aims to be a reference work for all researchers interested in the study of fictional dialogue and its translation in suspense novels and films as well as in related genres The volume also aims to determine the interplay between the creation of suspense and fictional dialogue The particular interest in dialogue comes from the host of roles it plays in fiction It helps create suspense and arouses a whole range of feelings in the reader or the audience related to the development of the plot Fictional dialogue is the discursive method of evoking orality conferring authenticity and credibility on a plot and giving fictional characters a voice As a narrative strategy dialogue is an important resource that enables the writer to shape the character's subjectivity In thrillers the character's voice is part of the process of creating suspense an element of uncertainty anxiety and excitement which is not exclusive to this genre To clearly differentiate suspense from the tension created by other types of fiction this volume aims to study the relationship between the character's voices and the building of suspense and to describe the translation difficulties arising from this particular interdependence

Media and Translation Dror Abend-David, 2014-07-31 Over the last decade there has been a dramatic increase in publications on media and translation In fact there are those who believe that so much has been published in this field that any further publications are superfluous But if one views media and translation as anything ranging from film and television drama to news casting commercials video games web pages and electronic street signs it would seem that research in media and translation has barely scratched the surface The research in this field is shared largely by scholars in communication and translation studies often without knowledge of each other or access to their respective methods of scholarship This collection will rectify this lack of communication by bringing such scholars together and creating a context for a theoretical discussion of the entire emerging field of Media and Translation with a preference for theoretical work rather than case studies on translation and communications of various forms and through various media

Key Debates in the Translation of Advertising Material Beverly Adab, Cristina Valdes, 2016-04-01 Much has been written about the marketing aspects of promotional material in general and several scholars particularly in linguistics have addressed questions relating to the structure and function of advertisements focusing on images rhetorical structure semiotic functions discourse features and audio visual media amongst other aspects of the genre Not much on the other hand has been written within translation studies about the complexities involved in the transfer of an advertising message Contributors to this volume explore various interdependent aspects of the interlingual and intercultural transfer of an advertising message They emphasize features of culture specificity of multi medial semiotic interaction of values and stereotypes and most importantly they recommend strategies and approaches to assist translators Topics covered include a critique of the Western based approach to advertising in the context of the Far East different perceptions of the concept of cleanliness in advertising texts in Italy Russia and the UK the Walls Cornetto strategy of internationalization of product appeal followed by localization the role of the translator in recreating appeal in different lingua cultural contexts what constitutes Italianness in advertisements for British consumers and strategies for repackaging France as a tourist destination

Shakespeare and the Language of Translation Ton Hoenselaars, 2014-05-13 Shakespeare's international status as a literary icon is largely based on his masterful use of the English language yet beyond Britain his plays and poems are read and performed mainly in translation Shakespeare and the Language of Translation addresses this apparent contradiction and is the first major survey of its kind Covering the many ways in which the translation of Shakespeare's works is practised and studied from Bulgaria to Japan South Africa to Germany it also discusses the translation of Macbeth into Scots and of Romeo and Juliet into British Sign Language The collection places renderings of Shakespeare's works aimed at the page and the stage in their multiple cultural contexts including gender race and nation as well as personal and postcolonial politics Shakespeare's impact on nations and cultures all around the world is increasingly a focus for study and debate As a result the international performance of Shakespeare and Shakespeare in translation have become areas of growing popularity for both under and post graduate study for which this book provides a valuable companion

Translating Dissent Mona Baker, 2015-10-30 Written by the winners of the Intratrans Linguists of the Year award for 2016 Discursive and non discursive interventions in the political arena are heavily mediated by various acts of translation that enable protest movements to connect across the globe Focusing on the Egyptian experience since 2011 this volume brings together a unique group of activists who are able to reflect on the complexities challenges and limitations of one or more forms of translation and its impact on their ability to interact with a variety of domestic and global audiences Drawing on a wide range of genres and modalities from documentary film and subtitling to oral narratives webcomics and street art the 18 essays reveal the dynamics and complexities of translation in protest movements across the world Each unique contribution demonstrates some aspect of the interdependence of these movements and their inevitable reliance on translation to create networks of solidarity The volume is framed by a substantial introduction by Mona Baker and includes an interview with Egyptian activist and film maker Philip Rizk With contributions by scholars and artists professionals and activists directly involved in the Egyptian revolution and other movements Translating Dissent will be of interest to students of translation intercultural studies and sociology as well as the reader interested in the study of social and political movements Online materials including links to relevant websites and videos are available at <http://www.routledge.com/cw/baker> Additional resources for Translation and Interpreting Studies are available on the Routledge Translation Studies Portal <http://www.routledge.com/textbooks/translationstudies>

Researching Translation in the Age of Technology and Global Conflict Kyung Hye Kim, Yifan Zhu, 2019-11-20

Mona Baker is one of the leading figures in the development of translation studies as an academic discipline. This book brings together fifteen of her most influential articles carefully selected and grouped under three main topics that represent her most enduring contributions to the field: corpus-based translation studies, translation as renarration, and translators in society. These applications and approaches have been widely adopted by translation scholars around the globe. The first section showcases Baker's pioneering work in introducing corpus linguistics methodologies to the field of translation studies, which established one of the fastest growing subfields in the discipline. The second section focuses on her application of narrative theory and the notion of framing to the study of translation and interpreting, and her contribution to demonstrating the various ways in which translators and interpreters intervene in the negotiation of social and political reality. The third and final section discusses the role of translators and interpreters as social and political activists who use their linguistic skills to empower voices made invisible by the global power of English and the politics of language. Tracing key moments in the development of translation studies as a discipline and with a general introduction by Theo Hermans and section introductions by other scholars contextualising the work, this is essential reading for translation studies scholars, researchers, and advanced students.
