Health Services for Cancer Survivors Michael Feuerstein, Patricia A. Ganz, 2011-06-15

Health has been conceptualized by world and national health organizations (WHO, CDC, Healthy People 2010) as more than the absence of disease. It involves a focus on physical, psychosocial, and functional aspects of life as well as the prevention of future illnesses. At this point in the development of quality health care for cancer survivors, there is sufficient knowledge and expert opinion to push efforts forward to improve the health of cancer survivors. Clearly, there is more research in the most prevalent forms of cancers (e.g., breast cancer) than others that provide us with guidance on how to optimize their health, but there are data on other forms of cancers that can also better inform practice. There may also be general care practices that can cut across cancer types. There has been an emergence of epidemiological and clinical research in cancer survivors that can form the basis for a revolution in the quality and nature of health care that survivors receive. This book not only provides the reader with diverse perspectives and data but also integrates this information so it can serve as the foundation necessary to improve and maintain the health of cancer survivors.

Reporting of symptoms to health care providers is a complex, multi-determined problem influenced not only by the pathophysiology but also as we have learned over the years through pain research by societal, cultural, and biobehavioral factors. This book will consider this important aspect of follow-up for millions of cancer survivors because of the strong reliance on symptom reporting for clinical decision making. In order for us to generate meaningful and effective treatment, we need to better understand the symptom experience in cancer survivors. This book provides much information that will assist us to better understand and manage this complicated end point. The presenting problems need to be articulated and conceptualized as clearly as possible by both parties so appropriate actions can be taken. Since health care costs are a major concern for patients, payers, and providers, this area will also be addressed in all the relevant sections. In taking an interdisciplinary perspective, this book illustrates the importance of a team approach to the improvement of health care and associated health, well-being, and functioning in cancer survivors. The 17 chapters cover critical topics of which physicians and providers of all types must be aware in order to provide the most comprehensive and responsive care for cancer survivors. All of the clinical care chapters include case studies to illustrate the real-world application of these approaches in cancer survivors. Information about sources of referral, both within and outside the traditional health care communities, will be provided in tabular form. There is no other text that provides both an overview of the problems and their challenges, case illustrations of direct application, and the reality of reimbursement for such care. The editors hope that there may be no need for the clinician or the survivor to adapt to a new normal if the presenting problems are understood and handled from an interdisciplinary perspective as outlined here.

Cancer and Aging Handbook Keith M. Bellizzi, Margot Gosney, 2012-07-20 A state of the art multidisciplinary approach to cancer and aging With the majority of cancers occurring in individuals over the age of 65 against a backdrop of an expanding aging population there is an urgent need to integrate the areas of clinical oncology and geriatric care This timely work tackles these issues head on presenting a truly multidisciplinary and international perspective on cancer and aging from world renowned experts in geriatrics oncology behavioral science psychology gerontology and public health Unlike other books on geriatric oncology that focus mainly on treatment Cancer and Aging Handbook Research and Practice examines all phases of the cancer care continuum from prevention through evidence based diagnosis and treatment to end of life care Detailed clinical and research information helps guide readers on effective patient care as well as caregiver training research and intervention Coverage includes Epidemiology of cancer in older adults plus the unique physical mental and social issues involved Strategies and guidelines for prevention screening and treatment of older individuals with cancer The most common cancers in the elderly including breast colorectal lung prostate and ovarian cancer Cancer survivorship in older adults as well as the all critical issues of palliative care and pain management Emerging topics such as caregiver and family issues different models of care and cost considerations An essential resource for clinicians and caregivers as well as researchers interested in this evolving field Cancer and Aging Handbook is also useful for public health professionals and policymakers who need to formulate services and allocate resources for the growing population of older cancer patients
