Ulrich, 2001-07-18 The Patient Self Determination Act of 1990 required medical facilities to provide patients with written notification of their right to refuse or consent to medical treatment Using this Act as an important vehicle for improving the health care decisionmaking process Lawrence P Ulrich explains the social legal and ethical background to the Act by focusing on well known cases such as those of Karen Quinlan and Nancy Cruzan and he explores ways in which physicians and other caregivers can help patients face the complex issues in contemporary health care practices According to Ulrich health care facilities often address the letter of the law in a merely perfunctory way even though the Act integrates all the major ethical issues in health care today Ulrich argues that well designed conversations between clinicians and patients or their surrogates will not only assist in preserving patient dignity which is at the heart of the Act but will also help institutions to manage the liability issues that the Act may have introduced. He particularly emphasizes developing effective advance directives. Ulrich examines related issues such as the negative effect of managed care on patient self-determination and concludes with a seldom-discussed issue: the importance of being a responsible patient. Showing how the Patient Self-Determination Act can be a linchpin of more meaningful and effective communication between patient and caregiver, this book provides concrete guidance to health care professionals, medical ethicists, and patient rights advocates. The Medical Ethics Advisor Sourcebook, 1996. Ethical Issues in Neurology James L. Bernat, 2008. Other highlights include updated material on palliative sedation, advance directives, ICU withdrawal of life-sustaining therapy, gene therapy, the very low birth weight premature infant, the developmentally disabled patient, informed consent, organizational ethics, brain death controversies, and fMRI and PET studies relating to persistent vegetative state. Advanced Practice Palliative Nursing Constance Dahlin, Patrick J.
