

Today as I reflect on International Women's Day, I think of my Kookum whom we just laid to rest this past Saturday. She lived a simple life and was a pillar in her community not because of what education she had or the job she possessed but because of her kindness and heart. She left behind a legacy of 188 immediate family and I am forever grateful to be a part of that. I celebrate her strength, courage and the life she lived. I owe so much of who I am because of her.

look into the life of a Métis Cree man who refused to give up. Abandoned by his parents as a toddler, Jesse Thistle briefly found himself in the foster care system with his two brothers cut off from all they had known. Eventually the children landed in the home of their paternal grandparents whose tough love attitudes quickly resulted in conflicts. Throughout it all, the ghost of Jesse's drug-addicted father haunted the halls of the house, and the memories of every family member. Struggling with all that had happened, Jesse succumbed to a self-destructive cycle of drug and alcohol addiction and petty crime, spending more than a decade on and off the streets, often homeless. Finally, he realized he would die unless he turned his life around. In this heartwarming and heart-wrenching memoir, Jesse Thistle writes honestly and fearlessly about his painful past, the abuse he endured, and how he uncovered the truth about his parents. Through sheer perseverance and education and newfound love, he found his way back into the circle of his Indigenous culture and family. An eloquent exploration of the impact of prejudice and racism, From the Ashes is, in the end, about how love and support can help us find happiness despite the odds. Learning designed to supplement Saskatchewan Education's Grade Two Social Studies curriculum for classroom studies about the family and the community. The nucleus of this unit is the story Cody's Community. The story includes the concepts of identity, location, tradition, responsibility, transportation, occupation, community services, and political structure. During the course of our unit, students will understand that a reserve is a community of First Nations families; a reserve provides services to its residents; a reserve has a political structure; reserves have a history and much more. This Canada lesson provides a teacher and student section with task cards, big book, storybooks, word search, and answer key to create a well-rounded lesson plan.

Reading Practices, Postcolonial Literature, and Cultural Mediation in the Classroom Ingrid Johnston, Jyoti

Mangat, 2012-03-24 In this book, Johnston and Mangat consider ways in which particular postcolonial and multicultural literary texts are able to provide a space of cultural mediation for readers from various backgrounds. The studies described in the five chapters of the book explore the spaces of convergence of identity, culture, and literature with students and teachers in high school contexts and undergraduates in university settings. In each study, readers are responding to texts that are culturally distant from their own literary and experiential histories. An objective of each study was to consider the nature of the cultural locations of the reader and the text and the interstitial spaces between these locations. The book interrogates readers' attempts to negotiate cultural difference in literary contexts and questions how this negotiation requires reading practices traditionally ignored in North American classrooms. The book will offer educators at the secondary and post-secondary levels rich material to draw upon for a rethinking of the school curriculum and will be of interest to scholars of postcolonial and literary studies. My Kookum Called Today Iris Loewen, 1994-01-01 Reading Diversity through

Canadian Picture Books Ingrid Johnston, Joyce Bainbridge, 2014-01-31 What is the value of picture books in educating a diverse society This collection of original essays explores how preservice teachers from faculties of education across Canada engage with issues of diversity and national identity as represented in children's picture books Based on research drawn from education courses and student teaching experiences the book illustrates new and culturally relevant approaches to curricula that meet the needs of increasingly diverse student bodies The volume focuses on picture books as a central body of texts drawing on recent reading theory and exploring the implications of bringing the works into school classrooms Together the essays offer a unique cross Canada perspective on how picture books can help students and teachers explore identities uncover personal and national histories and locate a sense of place      Constructing Meaning Joyce Bainbridge, Grace Malicky, 2000 This text introduces all aspects of language arts instruction while emphasizing the integration and interdependence of each element reading writing speaking and listening Topical coverage includes language development and emerging literacy the teaching of reading and writing the role of drama and children's literature in the classroom and methods of assessment      Indigenous STEM Education Pauline W.
