some and displaced others Moving beyond analysis to action the author describes a partnering strategy to help educators understand the lived experiences of children and families and to use their funds of knowledge as resources for teaching This book combines critical race theory critical geography first hand accounts and research on literacy practices at home to provide a powerful tool that will help teachers and administrators see families in new ways Book Features Describes a partnering model that encourages educators to consider the social cultural racial and economic factors that shape parent engagement with schools Identifies important areas of misunderstanding between African American parents and their children s teachers Incorporates personal narratives of children whose voices are rarely part of research on parent involvement Race Community and Urban Schools will make a difference in the lives of teachers and administrators As you read this book you may find yourself moved intrigued or saddened by some of the examples Stuart Greene provides And throughout you will find yourself rethinking reprocessing and recreating some of your most cherished ideas or preconceived notions about African American families From the Foreword by Patricia Edwards Michigan State University This powerful and hopeful book challenges dominant portrayals of African American parent disengagement in their children s education and exposes relations of race power and urban restructuring that exclude low income parents of color Through counterstories of parents deep commitment to their children s education Stuart Greene opens a space for us to think differently about creating democratic family school partnerships Pauline Lipman professor University of Illinois at Chicago

I Said a Prayer Mark Xandrine Sneed,2006-08 I SAID A PRAYER is the story of a young African American woman s battle with her own demons and her experience in the South and in the North I SAID A PRAYER is also the inspirational journey of a single mother s life and the young woman s direction and rededication to her love as her precocious child tries to understand his seemingly unfathomable differences at eight It is a tale of modern life Manufacturing Hope and Despair Ricardo D. Stanton-Salazar,2001 Relying on a wealth of ethnographic and statistical data this groundbreaking volume documents the many constraints and social forces that prevent Mexican origin adolescents from constructing the kinds of networks that provide access to important forms of social support Special attention is paid to those forms of support privileged youth normally receive and working class youth do not such as expert guidance regarding college opportunities The author also reveals how some working class ethnic minority youth become the exception weaving social webs that promote success in school as well as empowering forms of resiliency In both cases the role of social networks in shaping young people s chances is illuminated In this badly needed alternative to the individualism that pervades most debates about American education Stanton Salazar explores how Latino teenagers lives are embedded within social networks from home community and school This grand work shows how school programs can confound or can draw from the strengths of such networks to build better lives for all Bruce J Biddle Professor Emeritus of Psychology and Sociology University of Missouri Columbia A beautifully written and inspiring book that announces a new generation of Mexican Latino scholars This is a book which tells the tale about Mexican Latino adolescents but in reality it is a book about how working class adolescent life is socially constructed defined and elaborated in the United States An eloquent rendering indeed Carlos G V lez Ib ez Presidential Chair in Anthropology University of California Riverside Using creative theorizing and rigorous methodology Manufacturing Hope and Despair illuminates brilliantly the supposed mystery of persistent race class inequities in American society Walter R Allen Professor University of California Los Angeles
