

MY SISTER LOOKS LIKE A PEAR

DOUGLAS ANDERSON

Douglas Anderson talks about his recipes for sparking student writing (from the chapter "not to teach, to awaken"):

"If I started out, for instance, by playing some music and saying, 'Just write about anything you feel like,' that's precisely what I'd get back—a splatter of trite abstractions.

"We need a certain number of arbitrary, somewhat rigid vessels to pour our feelings into. And evoking poetry means, to me, provoking people into discovering something they did not know, rather than allowing them to settle for what they do know.

"I've been obliged by circumstance to develop methods which can inspire students to write (a) communally, and (b) in five days or less. That's an exquisite challenge, and it's a valid way to write. Valid because (a) each of us is—in spite of the incessant talk about 'alienation'—part of a very large community. I believe each of us ought to be minimally responsible for sharing our creations with others, and for making our creations minimally intelligible to others. As for (b), sometimes short-term pressure yields better results than long-term discourse.

"Of course, most serious writing is not done communally; it is done solitarily. And it more often takes five years or more than it does five days or less. So the very most I've been able to do is plant a few time bombs and hope they eventually explode; or give a push, and sometimes a well-placed kick, to people who are already well along the way; or to affirm creative talent wherever it surfaces, whether or not it happens to be writing talent.

"All my classroom techniques are triggers or seeds. And the writing itself should testify to that. Most of what I coaxed out of the students is from that original, upswelling birthquake of raw energy—unlike those pseudoprofessional, at times heavily coached pieces of writing which win contests."
