

Embracing Life's Transitions

Learning to let go is never easy. Goodbyes can leave us feeling queasy. We cling to what we know and love. Afraid of what may lie above.

But life is a journey, full of twists and turns. And sometimes we must leave behind what we've learned. New opportunities await us each day. And the unknown can lead to a brighter way.

Though it may be tough to say goodbye. Remember that growth comes from leaving the old behind. So take a deep breath and step into the new. For life is waiting to surprise and renew.

The path ahead may be uncertain and unclear. But trust that the universe will guide you near. Learn to let go of what no longer serves. And open your heart to what life reserves.

Embrace change with an open mind and heart. And watch as life reveals its vibrant art. For when we learn to let go and release.

We create space for new joys to increase. So take a leap of faith and trust the flow. For life's greatest lessons come from learning to let go.

With a breezy beat poet Da Mar's rhythm and rhyme capture the reader's attention as he explores the emotions evoked by these various changes. The Sky Watched Linda LeGarde Grover, 2022-10-25 A collective memoir in poetry of an Ojibwe family and tribal community from creation myth to this day, updated with new poems. Reaching from the moment of creation to the cry of a newborn, The Sky Watched gives poetic voice to Ojibwe family life. In English and Ojibwe, those assembled here—voices of history, memory, and experience of children and elders, Indian boarding school students, tribal storytellers, and the Manidoog, the unseen beings who surround our lives—come together to create a collective memoir in poetry as expansive and particular as the starry sky. This world unfolds in the manner of traditional Ojibwe storytelling, shaped by the seasons and the stages of life, marking the significance of the number four in the Ojibwe worldview.

Summoning spiritual and natural lore, award-winning poet and scholar Linda LeGarde Grover follows the story of a family, a tribe, and a people through historical ruptures and through intimate troubles and joys, from the sundering of Ojibwe people from their land and culture to singular horrors like the massacre at Wounded Knee, to personal trauma suffered at Indian boarding schools. Threaded throughout are the tribal traditions and knowledge that sustain a family and a people through hardship and turmoil, passed from generation to generation, coming together in the manifold power and beauty of the poet's voice.

Tradition and the Poetics of Self in Nineteenth-Century Women's Poetry, 2021-11-01 Tradition and how far writers fit into or diverge from the demands of tradition is one of the most debated issues.

in literary discussion Gender however is not often part of discussions which depend on such questions at the decisiveness of the Modernist break with the Victorian period or whether Postmodernism makes tradition meaningless By contrast the very existence of a specifically female tradition is still an urgent subject of debate and it is clear that many nineteenth century women writers were troubled in their search for literary foremothers This autobiographical impetus can be located in the work of each of the poets discussed in Tradition and the Poetics of Self Nineteenth Century Women s Poetry Elizabeth Barrett Browning Caroline Bowles Southey Emily Dickinson and Christina Rossetti An exploration of the self either in the abstract or in a more closely personal sense appears in a concern with the craft of poetry and the role of the poet in a teasing out of language as a marker of a personal encounter with the world in an adventurous play with genre and a rewriting of myth and in a bold confrontation with received notions of a woman s place Adventurousness marks the work of each of these poets and is a central focus of these essays
